Professional Identity in the Caring Professions Roger Ellis, Elaine Hogard, 2020-12-29 Professional identity is a central topic in all courses of professional training and educators must decide what kind of identity they hope their students will develop as well as think about how they can recruit for, facilitate and assess this development. This unique book explores professional identity in a group of caring professions looking at definition, assessment and teaching and learning. Professional Identity in the Caring Professions includes overviews of professional identity in nursing, medicine, social work, teaching and lecturing along with a further chapter on identity in emergent professions in healthcare. Additional chapters look at innovative approaches to selection, competency development, professional values, leadership potential and reflection as a key element in professional and interprofessional identity. Signs of Life Graeme Harper, Andrew Moor, 2005 Signs of Life: Medicine and Cinema is the first single volume to consider the cinematic representation of medicine, medical science and the medical profession and explores the political implications of the representations of doctors, nurses, patients, diseases and disabilities. The essays in this collection from a wide range of film scholars and medical practitioners also consider how formal qualities of cinema such as empirical observation, mise en scène, propaganda and education, melodrama, documentary and narrative construction impact on our understanding of medical procedures and the public image of medicine. Media and Health Clive Seale, 2003-01-17 This book appears to fill a substantial gap in the literature at present. There are quite simply no books available which engage seriously and competently with the presentation of health issues in the media and certainly none which focuses on representations of health and illness in as thematically coherent a manner as Seale proposes to do. Richard Gwyn, University of Cardiff. This is an excellent resource for students. It provides a comprehensive review of secondary literature in the field and is very well researched. Students of sociology of health and illness and in media and communication studies will find the book invaluable. David Oswell, Goldsmiths College, University of London. This is a comprehensive work on media health providing an invaluable toolkit for understanding health and the media in contemporary society. Seale goes further than previous textbooks critiquing the lament of media health promoters in order to explore the moralisation and

Social Work Practice Sonia M. Tascón, 2018-09-03 How are we to understand how the dominance of visual images and representations in late modernity affects Social Work practice research and education Social workers are increasingly using still and moving images to illustrate their work to create new knowledge and to further specific groups interests As a profession in which communication is central visual practices are becoming ever more significant as they seek to carry out their work with and for the marginalised and disenfranchised It is time for the profession to gain more critical analytical and practical knowledge of visual culture and communication in order to use and create images in accordance with its central principle of social justice That requires an understanding of them beyond representation As important as this is it is also where the profession s scholarly work in this area has remained and halted and thus understanding of the work of images in our practices is limited In order to more fully understand images and their effects both ideologically and experientially social workers need to bring to bear other areas of study such as reception studies visual phenomenology and the gaze These other analytical frames enable a consideration not only of images per se but also of their effect on the viewer the human spectators and the subjects at the heart of Social Work By bringing understandings and experiences in Film Media and Communications Visual Communication for Social Work Practice provides the reader with a wide range of critically analytical frames for practitioners activists educators and researchers as they use and create images This invites a deeper knowledge and familiarity with the power dimensions of the image thus aligning with the social justice dimension of Social Work Examples are provided from cinema popular media but more importantly from Social Work practitioners themselves to demonstrate what has already been made possible as they create and use images to further the interpersonal communal and justice dimensions of their work This book will be of interest to scholars students and social workers particularly those with an interest in critical and creative methodologies

Beyond Reflective Practice Helen Bradbury, Nick Frost, Sue Kilminster, Miriam Zukas, 2012-09-11 Reflective practice has moved from the margins to the mainstream of professional education However in this process its radical potential has been subsumed by individualistic rather than situated understandings of practice Presenting critical perspectives that challenge the current paradigm this book aims to move beyond reflective practice It proposes new conceptualisations and offers fresh approaches relevant across professions Contributors include both academics and practitioners concerned with the training and development of professionals Definitions of reflection which are often implicit often focus on the individual s internal thought processes and responsibility for their actions The individual what they did thought felt is emphasised with little recognition of context power dynamics or ideological challenge This book presents the work of practitioners educators academics and researchers who see this as problematic and are moving towards a more critical approach to reflective practice With an overview from the editors and fourteen chapters considering new conceptualisations professional perspectives and new practices Beyond Reflective Practice examines what new forms of professional reflective practice are emerging It examines in particular the relationships between reflective practitioners and those upon whom they practise It looks at the ways in which the world of professional work has changed and the ways in which professional practice needs to change to meet the needs of this new world It will be relevant for those concerned with initial and ongoing professional learning both in work and in educational contexts The Television Studies Reader
