Orleans Images Of America:

Images of Sex Work in Early Twentieth-Century America Mollie LeVeque, 2019-04-18 Storyville was the infamous red light district of New Orleans. It was a world where normative social values didn't apply and was shrouded in mystery and myth until the photographs of E. J. Bellocq were rediscovered. Bellocq's depictions of Storyville's sex workers have typically been treated as tragic, ominous, and emblematic of New Orleans singularity. Yet such interpretations have projected gendered stereotypes of frailty and victimhood onto the women they portrayed. In Images of Sex Work, Mollie LeVeque interrogates these glib readings and argues that sex work was a routine aspect of life in a modern city. She supports this theory by examining a range of cultural forms such as crime fiction illustrations and paintings from contemporary urban centres like Paris, London, and New York. In doing so, she advances the new argument that Bellocq humanised his subjects, de-sensationalised sex work, and gave these women the dignity they were all too often denied.

Educating the Sons of Sugar R. Eric Platt, 2017-10-10 A study of Louisiana French Creole sugar planters' role in higher education and a detailed history of the only college ever constructed to serve the sugar elite. The education of individual planter classes (cotton, tobacco, sugar) is rarely treated in works of southern history. Of the existing literature, higher education is typically relegated to a footnote, providing only brief glimpses into a complex instructional regime responsive to wealthy planters. R. Eric Platt's Educating the Sons of Sugar allows for a greater focus on the mindset of French Creole sugar planters and provides a comprehensive record and analysis of a private college supported by planter wealth. Jefferson College was founded in St. James Parish in 1831, surrounded by slave-holding plantations and their cash crop, sugar cane. Creole planters, regionally known as the ancien regime population, designed the college to impart a genteel liberal arts education through instruction, architecture, and geographic location. Jefferson College played host to social class rivalries. Creole, Anglo-American, and French immigrant mirrored the revival of Catholicism in a region typified by secular mores. It was subject to the Americanization of south Louisiana, higher education, and reflected the ancien regime population's decline as Louisiana's ruling population. Resulting from loss of funds, the college closed in 1848. It opened and closed three more times under varying administrations: French immigrant, private sugar planter, and Catholic Marist, before its final closure in 1927 due to educational competition, curricular intransigence, and the 1927 Mississippi River flood. In 1931, the campus was purchased by the Society of Jesus (Jesuits) and reopened as a silent religious retreat. It continues to function to this day as the Manresa House of Retreats. While in existence, Jefferson College was a social thermometer for the white French Creole sugar planter ethos that instilled the sons of sugar with a cultural heritage resonant of a region typified by the management of plantations, slavery, and the production of sugar.

Ficociello, 2017-10-19 Are we inside the era of disasters or are we merely inundated by mediated accounts of events categorized as catastrophic America's Disaster Culture offers answers to this question and a critical theory surrounding the culture of natural disasters in American consumerism literature media film and popular culture In a hyper mediated global culture disaster events reach us with great speed and minute detail and Americans begin forming interpreting and historicizing catastrophes simultaneously with fellow citizens and people worldwide America's Disaster Culture is not policy management or relief oriented It offers an analytical framework for the cultural production and representation of disasters catastrophes and apocalypses in American culture It focuses on filling a need for critical analysis centered upon the omnipresence of real and imagined disasters epidemics and apocalypses in American culture However it also observes events such as the Dust Bowl Hurricane Katrina and 9 11 that are re framed and re historicized as natural disasters by contemporary media and pop culture Therefore America's Disaster Culture theorizes the very parameters of classifying any event as a natural disaster addresses the biases involved in a catastrophic event's public narrative and analyzes American culture's consumption of a disastrous event Looking toward the future what are the hypothetical and actual threats to disaster culture Or are we oblivious that we are currently living in a post apocalyptic landscape
