Brands, 2003 The end of the Cold War created a near euphoria that nations might resort less to military force and that the Doomsday nuclear clock might stop short of midnight Events soon dashed the higher of these hopes but the nature of military force and the uses to which it might be put did appear to be changing In this volume eleven leading scholars apply their particular expertise to understanding what if anything has changed and what has not why the patterns are as they are and just what the future might bring Together the authors address political moral and military factors in the decision to use or avoid military force Case studies of the Gulf War and Bosnia analyses of the role of women in the armed forces and the role of intelligence agencies and studies of inter branch and inter agency tensions and cooperation inform the various chapters A strong and thoughtful introduction by H W Brands provides the context that ties together the themes and perspectives Scholars in this distinguished collection include Stephen Biddle Alexander L George J Bryan Hehir Andrew Kohut Andrew Krepinevich James M Lindsay Charles Moskos Williamson Murray Bruce Russett Tony Smith and Susan L Woodward The volume will help scholars policy makers and concerned citizens contemplate national alternatives when force threatens

Power and Influence after the Cold War Ann L. Phillips, 2000-05-30 Challenging conventional wisdom about German dominance in the new Europe this study presents a new approach to the question of power and influence after the Cold War Inspired by the debate over German hegemony and drawing on intensive fieldwork Ann L Phillips develops two original cases of German relations with East Central Europe to test competing arguments As she convincingly demonstrates the politics of reconciliation and the activities of German party affiliated foundations illustrate German engagement in the region in its dual faces restraint and projection The author uses the less developed literature on reciprocal influences of domestic politics and the international environment to frame her analysis These two cases provide evidence not only of the intersection of domestic politics and international relations but of when and how one trumps the other Contributing to the theoretical debate Phillips argues that this interplay explains the divergent trajectories bilateral relations have taken since 1990 in ways that more traditional neo realist or liberal approaches could not The author s fresh perspective and new evidence demonstrate that East Central European states play a much greater role in the influence equation than they did in the past

ways in which politics has shaped the thinking about history and identity in both China and Japan and explain the role political leadership in each country has played in shaping their respective nationalisms Michael Yahuda traces the evolution of the relationship over the two decades against the framework of a rising China gaining ground on a stagnant Japan and analyzes the politics of the economic interdependence between the two countries and their cooperation and competition in Southeast Asia and in its regional institutions Concluding with an examination of the complexities of their strategic relations and an evaluation of the potentialities for conflict and co existence between the two countries this is an essential text for students and scholars of Sino Japanese and East Asian International Relations
