Capitalizing Religion Craig Martin, 2014-09-25 Talk of spirituality and individual religion is proliferating both in popular discourse and scholarly works. Increasingly, people claim to be spiritual but not religious or to prefer individual religion to organized religion. Scholars have for decades noted the phenomenon, primarily within the middle class of individuals picking and choosing elements from among various religious traditions, forming their own religion or spirituality for themselves. While the topics of spirituality and individual religion are regularly treated as self-evident by the media and even some scholars of religion, Capitalizing Religion provides one of the first critical analyses of the phenomenon, arguing that these recent forms of spirituality are in many cases linked to capitalist ideology and consumer practices. Examining cases such as Eckhart Tolle's The Power of Now and Karen Berg's God Wears Lipstick, Craig Martin ultimately argues that so-called individual religion is a religion of the status quo or, more critically, an opiate of the bourgeoisie. Capitalizing Religion: Ideology and Opiate of the Bourgeoisie is a landmark publication in critical religious studies.

Freedom in Resistance and Creative Transformation Michael St. A. Miller, 2013-04-11 In Freedom in Resistance and Creative Transformation, Michael Miller addresses the concept of freedom that is central to the grammar of Christian faith and important in a wide range of religious and nonreligious settings across the globe. He confronts the fact that despite the claimed importance of freedom, there continues to be interpersonal, socio-political, and religious power hierarchies that keep some people dominant and others subjugated The book suggests that often these hierarchies are informed by Christian teachings that deny freedom to human beings on the basis of their humanity per se Having classified humanity as fallen we are instructed that freedom is experienced by disparaging our humanity as we actually experience it seeing ourselves as our own worst enemies and accepting bondage to God the bondage reflected in the character of relations with those seen as God's special representatives in the world Miller presents a case against this understanding of the human situation and in the process he critically engages the Old and New Testaments along with ideas of significant representatives of Christian orthodoxy As an alternative he promotes freedom that is finite realistically libertarian and relational as most compatible with the character of human beings that are partially self creating and self determining Contributing to this position is the view that an infinitely temporal God by character and desire participates in human life in a way that ensures the requisite space for authentic decision making from which emerges genuinely novel possibilities for human life This dynamic has implications for the continued development of the human species and the quality of life in the cosmos as a whole
