On Picket Duty, and Other Tales Louisa May Alcott, 2016-01-15 October moonlight shone clearly on the solitary tree draped with gray moss, scarred by lightning and warped by wind, looking like a venerable warrior whose long campaign was nearly done and underneath was posted the guard of four. Behind them twinkled many camp fires on a distant plain before them wound a road ploughed by the passage of an army strewn with the relics of a rout. On the right a sluggish river glided like a serpent, stealthy, sinuous, and dark into a seemingly impervious jungle; on the left a Southern swamp filled the air with malarial damps, swarms of noisome life, and discordant sounds that robbed the hour of its repose. The men were friends as well as comrades for though gathered from the four quarters of the Union and dissimilar in education, character, and tastes the same spirit animated all the routine of camp life threw them much together and mutual esteem soon grew into a bond of mutual good fellowship Thorn was a Massachusetts volunteer a man who seemed too early old too early embittered by some cross for though grim of countenance rough of speech cold of manner a keen observer would have soon discovered traces of a deeper warmer nature hidden behind the repellent front he turned upon the world A true New Englander thoughtful acute reticent and opinionated yet earnest withal intensely patriotic and often humorous despite a touch of Puritan austerity
