Congress's Archive of American Folk Song took an eighteen year old Alan and a 300 pound aluminum disk recorder into the rice fields of Jennings along the waterways of New Iberia and behind the gates of Angola State Penitentiary to collect vestiges of African American and Acadian musical tradition. These recordings now serve as the foundational document of indigenous Louisiana music. Although widely recognized by scholars as a key artifact in the understanding of American vernacular music, most of the recordings by John and Alan Lomax during their expedition across the central southern fringe of Louisiana were never transcribed or translated, much less studied in depth. This volume presents for the first time a comprehensive examination of the 1934 corpus and unveils a multifaceted story of traditional song in one of the country's most culturally dynamic regions. Through his textual and comparative study of the songs contained in the Lomax collection, Joshua Clegg Caffery provides a musical history of Louisiana that extends beyond Cajun music and zydeco to the rural blues, Irish and English folk songs, play party songs, slave spirituals, and traditional French folk songs that thrived at the time of these recordings. Intimate in its presentation of Louisiana folklife and broad in its historical scope, Traditional Music in Coastal Louisiana honors the legacy of John and Alan Lomax by retrieving these musical relics from obscurity and ensuring their understanding and appreciation for generations to come. Includes complete transcriptions of the 1934 Lomax field recordings in southwestern Louisiana, side-by-side translations from French to English, photographs from the 1934 field trip, and biographical details about the performers.

Topics discussed include language shift and code mixing, speaker attitudes, the role of schools and media in the maintenance of these languages, and such language planning initiatives as the CODOFIL program to revive the use of French in Louisiana.

French Louisiana Music and Its Patrons Patricia Peknik, 2018-09-10 French Louisiana music emerged from the bayous and prairies of Southwest Louisiana in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Pioneered by impoverished Acadian and Afro Caribbean settlers the sound is marked by a high pitched fiddle playing loud and fast above the bellow of a diatonic accordion With lyrics about disaster and heartache sung cheerfully in a French dialect the effect is dissonant and haunting French Louisiana music was largely ignored in mainstream music culture except by a handful of collectors scholars and commercial promoters who sought to popularize it From the first recordings in the 1920s to the transformation of the genre by the 1970s the spread of this regional sound was driven by local national and international elites who saw the music s traditions and performers in the context of larger social political and cultural developments including the folk revival and the civil rights and ethnic revival movements Patricia Peknik illuminates how the music s history and meaning were interpreted by a variety of actors who brought the genre onto a national and global stage revealing the many interests at work in the popularization of a regional music
