Sell, 2014-08-15 How is it that some texts achieve the status of literature Partly at least because the relationship they allow between their writers and the people who respond to them is fundamentally egalitarian This is the insight explored by members of the bo literary communication network who in this new book develop fresh approaches to literary works of widely varied provenance The authors examined have written in Ancient Greek T'ng Dynasty Chinese Middle Modern and Contemporary English German Romanian Polish Russian and Hebrew But each and every one of them is shown as having offered their human fellows something which despite some striking appearances to the contrary amounts to a welcoming invitation This their audiences have then been able to negotiate in a spirit of dialogical interchange Part I of the book poses the question How in offering their invitation have writers respected their audiences human autonomy This is the province of what bo scholars call communicational criticism Part II asks how an audience negotiating a literary invitation can be encouraged to respect the human autonomy of the writer who has offered it In bo parlance such encouragement is the task of mediating criticism These two modes of criticism naturally complement each other and in their shared concern for communicational ethics ultimately seek to further a post postmodern world that would be global without being hegemonic
