Machine Learning Jude Shavlik,1998      Information and Recommender Systems Elsa Nègre,2015-10-02

Information is an element of knowledge that can be stored processed or transmitted It is linked to concepts of communication data knowledge or representation In a context of steady increase in the mass of information it is difficult to know what information to look for and where to find them Computer techniques exist to facilitate this research and allow relevant information extraction Recommendation systems introduced the notions inherent to the recommendation based inter alia information search filtering machine learning collaborative approaches It also deals with the assessment of such systems and has various applications      Engineering Self-Organising Systems Giovanna Di Marzo Serugendo,Anthony Karageorgos,Omer F. Rana,Franco Zambonelli,2004-03-18

As information handling systems get more and more complex it becomes increasingly difficult to manage them using traditional approaches based on centralized and pre defined control mechanisms Over recent years there has been a significant increase in taking inspiration from biology the physical world chemistry and social systems to more efficiently manage such systems generally based on the concept of self organisation this gave rise to self organising applications This book constitutes a reference and starting point for establishing the field of engineering self organising applications It comprises revised and extended papers presented at the Engineering Self Organising Applications Workshop ESOA 2003 held at AAMAS 2003 in Melbourne Australia in July 2003 and selected invited papers from leading researchers in self organisation The book is organized in parts on applications natural metaphors multi cells and genetic algorithms stigmergy and atoms and evolution artificial interaction mechanisms middleware and methods and tools      Computing with Spatial Trajectories Yu Zheng,Xiaofang Zhou,2011-10-02

Spatial trajectories have been bringing the unprecedented wealth to a variety of research communities A spatial trajectory records the paths of a variety of moving objects such as people who log their travel routes with GPS trajectories The field of moving objects related research has become extremely active within the last few years especially with all major database and data mining conferences and journals Computing with Spatial Trajectories introduces the algorithms technologies and systems used to process manage and understand existing spatial trajectories for different applications This book also presents an overview on both fundamentals and the state of the art research inspired by spatial trajectory data as well as a special focus on trajectory pattern mining spatio temporal data mining and location based social networks Each chapter provides readers with a tutorial style introduction to one important aspect of location trajectory computing case studies and many valuable references to other relevant research work

Computing with Spatial Trajectories is designed as a reference or secondary text book for advanced level students and researchers mainly focused on computer science and geography Professionals working on spatial trajectory computing will also find this book very useful      Digital Signal Processing with Kernel Methods Jose Luis Rojo-Alvarez,Manel Martinez-Ramon,Jordi Munoz-Mari,Gustau Camps-Valls,2018-02-05

Advances in Large Margin Classifiers

Alexander J. Smola, 2000 The book provides an overview of recent developments in large margin classifiers examines connections with other methods e.g. Bayesian inference and identifies strengths and weaknesses of the method as well as directions for future research The concept of large margins is a unifying principle for the analysis of many different approaches to the classification of data from examples including boosting mathematical programming neural networks and support vector machines The fact that it is the margin or confidence level of a classification that is a scale parameter rather than a raw training error that matters has become a key tool for dealing with classifiers This book shows how this idea applies to both the theoretical analysis and the design of algorithms The book provides an overview of recent developments in large margin classifiers examines connections with other methods e.g. Bayesian inference and identifies strengths and weaknesses of the method as well as directions for future research Among the contributors are Manfred Oppel Vladimir Vapnik and Grace Wahba

High-Dimensional Data Analysis in Cancer Research Xiaochun Li, Ronghui Xu, 2008-12-19 Multivariate analysis is a mainstay of statistical tools in the analysis of biomedical data It concerns with associating data matrices of  $n$  rows by  $p$  columns with rows representing samples or patients and columns attributes of samples to some response variables e.g. patients outcome Classically the sample size  $n$  is much larger than  $p$  the number of variables The properties of statistical models have been mostly discussed under the assumption of fixed  $p$  and infinite  $n$  The advance of biological sciences and technologies has revolutionized the process of investigations of cancer The biomedical data collection has become more automatic and more extensive We are in the era of  $p$  as a large fraction of  $n$  and even much larger than  $n$  Take proteomics as an example Although proteomic techniques have been researched and developed for many decades to identify proteins or peptides uniquely associated with a given disease state until recently this has been mostly a laborious process carried out one protein at a time The advent of high throughput proteome wide technologies such as liquid chromatography tandem mass spectroscopy make it possible to generate proteomic signatures that facilitate rapid development of new strategies for proteomics based detection of disease This poses new challenges and calls for scalable solutions to the analysis of such high dimensional data In this volume we will present the systematic and analytical approaches and strategies from both biostatistics and bioinformatics to the analysis of correlated and high dimensional data

Representing Scientific Knowledge Chaomei Chen,Min Song,2017-11-25 This book is written for anyone who is interested in how a field of research evolves and the fundamental role of understanding uncertainties involved in different levels of analysis ranging from macroscopic views to meso and microscopic ones We introduce a series of computational and visual analytic techniques from research areas such as text mining deep learning information visualization and science mapping such that readers can apply these tools to the study of a subject matter of their choice In addition we set the diverse set of methods in an integrative context that draws upon insights from philosophical sociological and evolutionary theories of what drives the advances of science such that the readers of the book can guide their own research with their enriched theoretical foundations Scientific knowledge is complex A subject matter is typically built on its own set of concepts theories methodologies and findings discovered by generations of researchers and practitioners Scientific knowledge as known to the scientific community as a whole experiences constant changes Some changes are long lasting whereas others may be short lived How can we keep abreast of the state of the art as science advances How can we effectively and precisely convey the status of the current science to the general public as well as scientists across different disciplines The study of scientific knowledge in general has been overwhelmingly focused on scientific knowledge per se In contrast the status of scientific knowledge at various levels of granularity has been largely overlooked This book aims to highlight the role of uncertainties in developing a better understanding of the status of scientific knowledge at a particular time and how its status evolves over the course of the development of research Furthermore we demonstrate how the knowledge of the types of uncertainties associated with scientific claims serves as an integral and critical part of our domain expertise

re world large and is the core step of a broader process called the knowledge discovery from databases KDD process In addition to the DM step which actually extracts knowledge from data the KDD process includes several preprocessing or data preparation and post processing or knowledge refinement steps The goal of data preprocessing methods is to transform the data to facilitate the application of a or several given DM algorithm s whereas the goal of knowledge refinement methods is to validate and refine discovered knowledge Ideally discovered knowledge should be not only accurate but also comprehensible and interesting to the user The total process is highly computation intensive The idea of automatically discovering knowledge from databases is a very attractive and challenging task both for academia and for industry Hence there has been a growing interest in data mining in several AI related areas including evolutionary algorithms EAs The main motivation for applying EAs to KDD tasks is that they are robust and adaptive search methods which perform a global search in the space of candidate solutions for instance rules or another form of knowledge representation Support Vector

Machines for Pattern Classification Shigeo Abe,2005-07-29 Support vector machines SVMs were originally formulated for two class classification problems and have been accepted as a powerful tool for developing pattern classification and function approximations systems This book provides a unique perspective of the state of the art in SVMs by taking the only approach that focuses on classification rather than covering the theoretical aspects The book clarifies the characteristics of two class SVMs through their extensive analysis presents various useful architectures for multiclass classification and function approximation problems and discusses kernel methods for improving generalization ability of conventional neural networks and fuzzy systems Ample illustrations examples and computer experiments are included to help readers understand the new ideas and their usefulness This book supplies a comprehensive resource for the use of SVMs in pattern classification and will be invaluable reading for researchers developers students in academia and industry Natural Language Processing
