French Bibliographical Digest ,1959 Philosophy and Scientific Realism J J C Smart,2014-04-04 Originally published in 1963 In an introductory chapter the author argues that philosophy ought to be more than the art of clarifying thought and that it should concern itself with outlining a scientifically plausible world view Early chapters deal with phenomenalism and the reality of theoretical entities and with the relation between the physical and biological sciences Free will issues of time and space and man s place in nature are covered in later chapters International Communities of Invention and Innovation Arthur Tatnall,Christopher Leslie,2016-11-30 This book contains revised selected papers presented at the IFIP WG 9.7 International Conference on the History of Computing HC 2016 held in Brooklyn NY USA in May 2016 The 13 full papers included in this volume were carefully reviewed and selected from numerous submissions The papers cover a wide range of topics related to the history of computing and focus on the history of pre existing relationships and communities that led to triumphs and dead ends in the history of computing This broad perspective helps to tell a more accurate story of important developments like the Internet and provide a better understanding of how to sponsor future invention and innovation They reflect on histories that foreground the international community along four broad themes invention policy infrastructure and social history The Origins of Digital Computers B. Machine Art in the Twentieth Century Andreas Broeckmann, 2016-12-16 An investigation of artists' engagement with technical systems tracing art historical lineages that connect works of different periods Machine art is neither a movement nor a genre but encompasses diverse ways in which artists engage with technical systems In this book Andreas Broeckmann examines a variety of twentieth and early twenty-first century artworks that articulate people's relationships with machines In the course of his investigation Broeckmann traces historical lineages that connect art of different periods looking for continuities that link works from the end of the century to developments in the 1950s and 1960s and to works by avant-garde artists in the 1910s and 1920s An art historical perspective he argues might change our views of recent works that seem to be driven by new media technologies but that in fact continue a century-old artistic exploration Broeckmann investigates critical aspects of machine aesthetics that characterized machine art until the 1960s and then turns to specific domains of artistic engagement with technology algorithms and machine autonomy looking in particular at the work of the Canadian artist David Rokeby vision and image and the advent of technical imaging and the human body using the work of the Australian artist Stelarc as an entry point to art that couples the machine to the body mechanically or cybernetically Finally Broeckmann argues that systems thinking and ecology have brought about a fundamental shift in the meaning of technology which has brought with it a rethinking of human subjectivity He examines a range of artworks including those by the Japanese artist Seiko Mikami whose work exemplifies the shift
