Carson,2005-12-30 The Mexican United States border represents much more than the meeting place of two nations Our border communities are often a line of first defense absorbing the complex economic environmental and social impacts of globalization that ripple through the region In many ways our success or failure in finding solutions for the environmental social and economic issues that plague the region may well define our ability to meet similar challenges thousands of miles from the border zone Border residents face the environmental security concerns posed by water scarcity and transboundary air pollution the planning and infrastructure needs of an exploding population the debilitating effects of inadequate sanitary and health facilities and the crippling cycle of widespread poverty Yet with its manifold problems the border area remains an area of great dynamism and hope a multicultural laboratory of experimentation and grass roots problem solving Indeed as North America moves towards a more integrated economy citizen action at the local level is pushing governments to adapt to the driving forces in the border area by creating new institutional arrangements and improving old ones If there is one defining feature of this ground up push for more responsive transboundary policies and institutions it is a departure from the closed formalistic models of the past to a more open transparent and participatory model of international interaction A

Research Guide to Cartographic Resources Eva H. Dodsworth,2018-09-22 The interdisciplinary uses of traditional cartographic resources and modern GIS tools allow for the analysis and discovery of information across a wide spectrum of fields A Research Guide to Cartographic Resources navigates the numerous American and Canadian cartographic resources available in print and online offering researchers academics and students with information on how to locate and access the large variety of resources new and old Dozens of different cartographic materials are highlighted and summarized along with lists of map libraries and geospatial centers and related professional associations A Research Guide to Cartographic Resources consists of 18 chapters two appendices and a detailed index that includes place names and libraries structured in a manner consistent with most reference guides including cartographic categories such as atlases dictionaries gazetteers handbooks maps plans GIS data and other related material Almost all of the resources listed in this guide are categorized by geography down to the county level making efficient work of the type of material required to meet the information needs of those interested in researching place specific cartographic related resources Additionally this guide will help those interested in not only developing a comprehensive collection in these subject areas but get an understanding of what materials are being collected and housed in specific map libraries geospatial centers and their related websites Of particular value are the sections that offer directories of cartographic and GIS libraries as well as comprehensive lists of geospatial datasets down to the county level This volume combines the traditional and historical collections of cartography with the modern applications of GIS based maps and geospatial datasets
