Where the Rivers Meet Carly A. Dokis,2015-07-01 Oil and gas companies now recognize that industrial projects in the Canadian North can only succeed if Aboriginal communities are involved in decision making processes Are Aboriginal concerns appropriately addressed through current consultation and participatory processes Where the Rivers Meet is an ethnographic account of Sahtu Dene involvement in the environmental assessment of the Mackenzie Gas Project a massive pipeline that if completed would have unprecedented effects on Aboriginal communities in the North Carly A Dokis reveals that while there has been some progress in establishing avenues for Dene participation in decision making the structure of participatory and consultation processes fails to meet the expectations of local people by requiring them to participate in ways that are incommensurable with their experiential knowledge and understandings of the environment Ultimately Dokis finds that the evaluation of such projects remains rooted in non local beliefs about the nature of the environment the commodification of land and the inevitability of a hydrocarbon based economy

Men and Bears AA.VV.,2020-01-23 The time of Carnival represents a wild time at the end of winter and pointing to the beginning of a new season It is characterized by the irruption of border figures animal masks characters which recall the world of the dead and which bring within themselves the germ of a vital force of the energy that produces the reawakening of nature and announces the growth and fertility of the new crops This wild domain shows itself under the shapes of a contiguity between human and animal the costumes the masks refer to a world in which the characteristics of the human and those of the animal are fused and intertwined Among these figures in particular emerge those of the Wild Man the human being who takes on animal like attributes and aspects and of the Bear the animal that more than all the others gets as close as possible to the human and seems to reflect a deformed image of it Such symbolic images come from far off times and places to tell a story that belongs to our common origins The bear assumes attributes and functions alike in very different cultural contexts such as the S mi of Finland or North American hunter gatherers and represents a boundary between the world of nature and the human world between the domain of animals and the difficult construction of humanity a process continued for centuries perhaps millennia and which cannot still be said complete

Anthropology and Nature Kirsten Hastrup,2013-08-15 On the basis of empirical studies this book explores nature as an integral part of the social worlds conventionally studied by anthropologists The book may be read as a form of scholarly edgework resisting institutional divisions and conceptual routines in the interest of exploring new modalities of anthropological knowledge making The present interest in the natural world is partly a response to large scale natural disasters and global climate change and to a keen sense that nature matters matters to society at many levels ranging from the microbiological and genetic framing of reproduction over co species development to macro ecological changes of weather and climate Given that the human footprint is now conspicuous across the entire globe in the oceans as well as in the atmosphere it is difficult to claim that nature is what is given and permanent while people and societies are ephemeral and simply derivative features This implies that society matters to nature and some natural scientists look towards the social sciences for an understanding of how people think and how societies work The book thus opens up a space for new forms of reflection on how natures and societies are generated
