A New Look at Love Elaine Hatfield, G. William Walster, 1985 This fascinating review of what social psychologists know about love, sex, and intimacy puts to rest some tired clichés on the subject. Begins by asking, 'What is this thing called love?' and finds that people distinguish between two kinds of love: passionate love and companionate love. This study answers a variety of questions about love, such as: Where is the best place to find someone to love? Do men and women want different things from love? How can couples make love last? Originally published by Addison-Wesley in 1978, it won the American Psychological Foundation National Media Award in 1979.

Looking for a Lost Leigh Love Ian Yearsley, In the late 1970s and early 1980s, teenage Leigh on Sea schoolboy Dave Young finds himself falling head over heels in love unexpectedly with a beautiful girl from a rival school. Their journeys entwine every day, and they regularly bump into one another and eventually speak. Over time, they become good friends, but they lose contact when the time comes for them to leave their respective schools. Three decades later, when retracing his steps through Leigh, as he visits his hospitalised stepfather who is losing a battle to cancer, Dave begins to experience flashbacks about the girl he was in love with and is unable to shake them off. Full of emotion, he decides to try to track her down to see what has become of her. Dave's search takes him through personal memories, moral dilemmas, and dusty documentation, stirring up all kinds of emotions for him on the way. Is the love of his life now dead or still alive? Did she leave the town, or is she still living somewhere in its myriad of streets, waiting to be found? Is he right to go looking for her in the first place? Join Dave on his journey through the past and present as he looks for his lost Leigh love. Author Ian Yearsley draws on his own experiences of growing up in Leigh-on-Sea to create a fictional but very realistic story for this second book in his Essex Novella Series. In doing so, he explores the intertwining themes of love and loss.
