Accommodating Poverty J. McEwan, P. Sharpe, 2010-12-08 This book offers a detailed examination of the living arrangements and material circumstances of the poor between 1650 and 1850 Chapters investigate poor households in urban rural and metropolitan contexts and contribute to wider investigations into British economic and social conditions in the long Eighteenth century

Tracing Your Poor Ancestors Stuart A. Raymond, 2020-05-30 Provides a wealth of information about people who have gone through debt collectives hospitals bankruptcy crime homelessness the list is huge UK Historian Many people in the past perhaps a majority were poor Tracing our ancestors amongst them involves consulting a wide range of sources Stuart Raymond's handbook is the ideal guide to them He examines the history of the poor and how they survived Some were supported by charity A few were lucky enough to live in an almshouse Many had to depend on whatever the poor law overseers gave them Others were forced into the Union workhouse Some turned to a life of crime Vagrants were whipped and poor children were apprenticed by the overseers or by a charity Paupers living in the wrong place were forcibly removed to their parish of settlement Many parishes and charities offered them the chance to emigrate to North America or Australia As a result there are many places where information can be found about the poor Stuart Raymond describes them all the records of charities of the poor law overseers of poor law unions of Quarter Sessions of bankruptcy and of friendly societies He suggests many other potential sources of information in record offices libraries and on the internet Packed with incredibly useful reference information which no family historian should be without The Essex Family Historian

Social Relations and Urban Space Fiona Williamson, 2014 This book offers an insight into the social relationships and topographies that fashioned both city life and landscape and serves as a useful counterpoise in a field that has largely focused on London This is a book about seventeenth century Norwich and its inhabitants At its core are the interconnected themes of social topographies and the relationships between urban inhabitants and their environment Cityscapes were and are shaped and given meaning during the practice of people's lived experiences In return those same urban places lend human interactions depth and quality Social Relations and Urban Space uncovers manifold possible landscapes including those belonging to the rich and to the poor to men to women to strangers and foreigners to political actors of both formal and informal means Norwich's inhabitants witnessed the tumultuous seventeenth century at first hand and their experiences were written into the landscape and immortalised in its exemplary surviving records This book offers an insight into the social relationships and topographies that fashioned both city life and landscape and serves as a useful counterpoise in a field that has largely focused on London FIONA WILLIAMSON is currently Senior Lecturer in History at the National University of Malaysia

By the Numbers Jessica Marie Otis, 2024 During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries English numerical practices underwent a complex transformation with wide ranging impacts on English society At the beginning of the early modern period English men and women believed that God had made humans universally numerate although numbers were not central to their everyday lives Over the next two centuries rising literacy rates and the increasing availability of printed books revolutionized modes of arithmetical practice and education Ordinary English people began to use numbers and quantification to explain abstract phenomena as diverse as the relativity of time the probability of chance events and the constitution of human populations These changes reflected their participation in broader early modern European cultural and intellectual developments such as the Reformation and the Scientific Revolution By the eighteenth century English men and women still believed they lived in a world made by God but it was also a world made and made understandable by numbers

Africans in East Anglia, 1467-1833 Richard Maguire,2021 What were the lives of Africans in provincial England like during the early modern period How where and when did they arrive in rural counties How were they perceived by their contemporaries This book examines the population of Africans in Norfolk and Suffolk from 1467 the date of the first documented reference to an African in the region to 1833 when Parliament voted to abolish slavery in the British Empire It uncovers the complexity of these Africans historical experience considering the interaction of local custom class structure tradition memory and the gradual impact of the Atlantic slaving economy Richard C Maguire proposes that the initial regional response to arriving Africans during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries was not defined exclusively by ideas relating to skin colour but rather by local understandings of religious status class position ideas about freedom and bondage and immediate local circumstances Arriving Africans were able to join the region s working population through baptism marriage parenthood and work This manner of response to Africans was challenged as local merchants and gentry begin doing business with the slaving economy from the mid seventeenth century onwards Although the racialised ideas underpinning Atlantic slavery changed the social circumstances of Africans in the region the book suggests that they did not completely displace older more inclusive ideas in working communities Houses and the Hearth Tax P. S.

Barnwell,Malcolm Airs,2006 The Hearth Tax 1662 89 is the only national listing of people between the medieval poll taxes and the 19th century census returns It was a property tax measured by the number of fireplaces in the dwelling of each eligible household The data provides valuable insights into national wealth population and social structure This study goes further than any before in linking these general questions to a full investigation of changing and diverse forms of domestic building and house use
