Caroline Gorden, Christopher Birkbeck

She Must Have Known The Trial Of Rosemary West:

She Must Have Known Brian Masters, 1997 Frederick West cheated everybody when he hung himself on New Year's Day 1995 Was this a sign of overwhelming guilt Was West criminally insane or merely a sexual sadist of the worst kind Brian Masters sets out to answer these questions Attending the Rosemary West trial on a daily basis Masters has come up with a penetrating study of the sexual obsession that led to the measured killing of twelve women and girls In the wake of the horrific detail of murder sadism and torture that has come to light in the last few months Masters from his privileged courtroom vantage point looks closely at how and why ordinary human beings were driven to serial killing of the most devious kind and how an evil psychopath was able to ensnare so many in a web of unseeing complicity He unravels with particular precision the legal means used to bring the whole matter to trial and weighs the evidence coolly and objectively Brian Masters has established his reputation as an authority on the criminal and psychopathic mind This is his highly reasoned and psychologically acute look at what has become Britain's serial killer trial of the century

Body Horror John Taylor, 1998-09 What compels us to look at shocking photographs or alternatively to look away Should the media use disturbing images to inform at the risk of offending How is our sense of politics morality and culture affected when we are exposed to gruesome images of accidents and disasters murder and execution grief and death In Body Horror John Taylor addresses these questions by examining how the media presents unsettling pictures especially those of dead and injured foreigners Drawing on recent experiences in the Gulf Bosnia and Rwanda Taylor argues that documentary photography for all the horror it reproduces ultimately defines a democracy Fully aware of the voyeuristic aspects of photojournalism Taylor probes the difficulty of applying moral imperatives when separating the utility of showing images of suffering and violence from the risk of either insulting or gratifying public sensibilities A compelling documentary of photography s cultural and political power Body Horror analyzes the moral responsibility attached to publishing and bearing witness to photographs of violence and the historical amnesia that arises when such imagery remains unseen

The Subject of Murder Lisa Downing, 2024-05-31 The subject of murder has always held a particular fascination for us But since at least the nineteenth century we have seen the murderer as different from the ordinary citizen a special individual like an artist or a genius who exists apart from the moral majority a sovereign self who obeys only the destructive urge sometimes even commanding cult followings In contemporary culture we continue to believe that there is something different and exceptional about killers but is the murderer such a distinctive type Are they degenerate beasts or supermen as they have been depicted on the page and the screen Or are murderers something else entirely In The Subject of Murder Lisa Downing explores the ways in which the figure of the murderer has been made to signify a specific kind of social subject in Western modernity Drawing on the work of Foucault in her studies of the lives and crimes of killers in Europe and the United States Downing interrogates the meanings of media and texts produced about and by murderers Upending the usual treatment of murderers as isolated figures or exceptional individuals Downing argues that they are ordinary people reflections of our society at the intersections of gender agency desire and violence crimes of Peter Sutcliffe and Harold Shipman Will They Do it Again? Herschel Prins, 2002-01-04 Focus in the media on the risks posed to ordinary people has become increasingly strong in recent years particularly on those risks popularly perceived to be posed by the mentally ill But how justified is this concern How do we best manage so called dangerous people In Will They Do It Again Herschel Prins considers the issue of public protection within a broad context of risk in society generally examining the concerns arising in contemporary society from dealing with uncertainty It is argued that public fear over the danger posed by the mentally ill is at odds with the evidence and that much of the concern is focused on a small number of high profile cases Prins goes on to examine such cases where management of the mentally ill has failed and sets out suggestions for improvements in practice Will They Do It Again cuts through popular misunderstanding and media hype over risk to give a clear unbiased picture of the real risks to society from the mentally ill and how best they can be contained and managed and will prove invaluable to a range of practitioners involved in the fields of criminal justice and psychiatry Serial Killers David Wilson, 2007 This book looks at all serial murders in Britain from the gay murders of Michael Copeland in 1960 to the Ipswich murders of 2006 Throughout the work follows events from a social and victim related perspective Criminologist and ex prison governor David Wilson concludes that we are not all at risk everyday from what he terms hunting Britons rather it is people from a variety of vulnerable groups the elderly women involved in prostitution gay men runaways throwaways and children moving from place to place Inside the Minds of Sexual Predators Katherine Ramsland, Patrick N.
