Late Cretaceous and Cenozoic Mammals of North America Michael O. Woodburne, 2004-04-21 This book places into modern context the information by which North American mammalian paleontologists recognize, divide, calibrate and discuss intervals of mammalian evolution known as North American Land Mammal Ages. It incorporates new information on the systematic biology of the fossil record and utilizes the many recent advances in geochronologic methods and their results. The book describes the increasingly highly resolved stratigraphy into which all available temporally significant data and applications are integrated. Extensive temporal coverage includes the Lancian part of the Late Cretaceous and geographical coverage includes information from Mexico, an integral part of the North American fauna past and present. North

American Quaternary Canis Ronald M. Nowak, 1979 Biostratigraphy and Vertebrate Paleontology of the San Timoteo Badlands, Southern California L. Barry Albright III, 2000-03-08 The author describes forty-two fossil taxa recovered during a study of the San Timoteo Badlands that used magnetobiostratigraphy to develop a temporal framework for addressing the tectonic evolution of southern California over the last 6 million years. For the Pliocene, small mammals are an effective means of correlating a magnetostratigraphy to the Geomagnetic Polarity Time Scale when radioisotopic dates are unobtainable.

Evaluating the Taxonomic Status of the Mexican Gray Wolf and the Red Wolf National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Agriculture and Natural Resources, Board on Life Sciences, Committee on Assessing the Taxonomic Status of the Red Wolf and the Mexican Gray Wolf, 2019-05-01 Scientists strive to develop clear rules for naming and grouping living organisms. But taxonomy, the scientific study of biological classification and evolution, is often highly debated. Members of a species, the fundamental unit of taxonomy and evolution, share a common evolutionary history and a common evolutionary path to the future. Yet it can be difficult to determine whether the evolutionary history or future of a population is sufficiently distinct to designate it as a unique species. A species is not a fixed entity; the relationship among the members of the same species is only a snapshot of a moment in time. Different populations of the same species can be in different stages in the process of species formation or dissolution. In some cases, hybridization and introgression can create enormous challenges in interpreting data on genetic distinctions between groups. Hybridization is far more common in the evolutionary history of many species than previously recognized. As a result, the precise taxonomic status of an organism may be highly debated. This is the current case with the Mexican gray wolf Canis lupus baileyi and the red wolf Canis rufus, and this report assesses the taxonomic status for each. Vertebrate

Dogs Xiaoming Wang,Richard H. Tedford,2008-07-03 Two noted paleontologists present a detailed portrait of the family Canidae across 40 million years of evolution in this illustrated volume After decades of research and analysis paleontologists Xiaoming Wang and Richard H Tedford established the modern framework for understanding the evolutionary relationship of canids Combining their work with Mauricio Ant n s reconstructions of both extinct and extant species Wang and Tedford now present a nuanced and visually stunning portrait of the origin and evolution of canids The fossil record of the Canidae particularly those from their birthplace in North America are the strongest of their kind among known groups of carnivorans Such a wonderfully detailed evolutionary history makes the canid an ideal model organism for the mapping of predator behavior and morphological specializations With its innovative illustrated approach to this important branch of animal and fossil study Dogs provides an unprecedented reference for anyone interested in the evolution of these fascinating animals
