East Anglian English Jacek Fisiak, Peter Trudgill, 2001 Studies of the very earliest form of language which can be called English and its later influence East Anglia the easternmost area of England was probably home to the first ever form of language which can be called English East Anglian English has had a very considerable input into the formation of Standard English and contributed importantly to the development of American English and to a lesser extent Southern Hemisphere Englishes it has also experienced multilingualism on a remarkable scale However it has received little attention from linguistic scholars over the years and this volume provides an overdue assessment. The articles by leading scholars in the field cover all aspects of the English of East Anglia from its beginnings to the present day. Topics include place names, non-standard grammar, dialect phonology, dialect contact, language contact and a host of other issues of descriptive, theoretical, historical and sociolinguistic interest and importance. Professor JACEK FISIĄK teaches in the Department of English at the Adam Mickiewicz University, Poland. Professor PETER TRUDGILL is Chair of English Linguistics at the University of Fribourg. Reports from Commissioners Great Britain. Parliament. House of Lords, 1839 Groundwater Resources Modelling M. G. Shepley, 2012. The UK is a country with over 150 years of widespread exploitation of its principal aquifers for public water supply. Increasing demands, greater awareness of environmental pressures and more exacting legislation has heightened the need for quantitative models to predict the impacts of groundwater use. In the UK this has culminated in a unique national regulator-led programme for England and Wales to develop conceptual and numerical models of the principal bedrock aquifers. The outcomes of this programme will be of interest to the international hydrogeological community, particularly as international legislation such as the European Water Framework Directive requires management of water issues across administrative boundaries with a varied cast of stakeholders. The collection of papers provides a contrast between practitioner and research-based approaches to assess and predict the anthropogenic impacts and environmental pressures. Parliamentary Debates (Hansard). Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons, 1985 Bronze Age Landscapes Joanna Bruck, 2002-02-01. This volume is a collection of essays which exemplify the range and diversity of work currently being undertaken on the regional landscapes of the British Bronze Age and the progress which has been made in both theoretical and interpretive debate. Together these papers reflect the vibrancy of current research and promote a closer marriage of landscape site and material culture studies.
