Northwards By Sea:

Northwards by Sea Gordon Donaldson, 1978-06-01 The North Sea David Freestone, Ton IJlstra, 2024-11-25 The North Sea one of the most intensively used sea areas in the world may well be one of the most intensively regulated sea areas as well As human activity developed in the North Sea national and later international regulations followed these developments The result has been what is commonly called a piecemeal approach The legal regime of the North Sea has developed in an incremental manner Thus one conventional instrument after the other covering different user functions like vessel source pollution fisheries ocean dumping and land based pollution was adopted In contrast to more modern approaches these legal instruments have their own framework The result is that the instruments are scattered in many different documents and even for the more well informed North Sea watcher it is difficult to obtain a comprehensive overview of the regulatory instruments The North Sea Basic Legal Documents on Regional Environmental Co operation offers a comprehensive view of the instruments dealing with all sources of marine pollution in the North Sea be they ocean dumping land based pollution or vessel source pollution The book contains many legal documents including maps and tables It also contains non conventional instruments such as the texts of the declarations of the International North Sea Conferences held between 1984 and 1990 and recommendations and decisions of e g the Paris Commission on Land Based Pollution and the Oslo Commission on Dumping Furthermore the book contains documentation on relatively new areas of environmental concern in the North Sea region i e nature conservation and management of living resources The book supplements The North Sea Perspectives on Regional Environmental Co operation also edited by David Freestone and Ton IJlstra which contains 26 essays on legal and policy aspects of environmental protection in the North Sea North Sea Archaeologies Robert Van de Noort, 2012-05-03 This innovative study offers an up to date analysis of the archaeology of the North Sea Robert Van de Noort traces the way people engaged with the North Sea from the end of the last ice age around 10 000 BC to the close of the Middle Ages about AD 1500 Van de Noort draws upon archaeological research from many countries including the UK the Netherlands Germany Denmark Sweden Norway Belgium and France and addresses topics which include the first interactions of people with the emerging North Sea the origin and development of fishing the creation of coastal landscapes the importance of islands and archipelagos the development of seafaring ships and their use by early seafarers and pirates and the treatments of boats and ships at the end of their useful lives Mesolithic Settlement in the North Sea Basin Clive Waddington, 2007-12-20 The archaeological remains at Howick consist of a Mesolithic hut site and an Early Bronze Age cist cemetery located on a modern cliff edge overlooking a small estuary This volume is devoted solely to the reporting and interpretation of the Mesolithic remains Three huts had been constructed on the Howick site all on the same footprint with no evidence to indicate a gap between these occupations and the remains inside the hut were all consistent with its use as a habitation site The lithic material from Howick is the most accurately dated assemblage from any British Mesolithic site and is a classic example of a narrow blade industry Typically for Britain these sites date from around 7500 cal BC but the Howick dates indicate an earlier start for this type of industry The chipped stone assemblage from Howick is all made from locally occurring beach pebble flint which fits into the wider pattern of localised raw material acquisition by groups elsewhere in North East England A wide variety of tool types were found within the hut reflecting the diverse activities that appear to have taken place there With such a wide range of resources on offer on a year round basis the site is interpreted as a base camp settlement that was used by the same group and their descendants over a period of several generations lasting for somewhere in the region of 200 years The size of the hut indicates its use by a family sized group The Howick excavations have forced a rethink of the scale and nature of Mesolithic settlement in North East England as well as the relationship between this and other regions around the North Sea Basin It is hoped that this work will help encourage further research into the Mesolithic of the region and its interactions with adjacent areas of upland other North Sea Basin communities as well as groups occupying the lands further north and south

Heessen, Niels Daan, Jim R. Ellis, 2023-09-14 The atlas presents a unique set of abundance data to describe the spatial depth size and temporal distribution of demersal and pelagic fish species over an extensive marine area together with accounts of their biology A large number of pictures graphs and distribution maps illustrate the text By largely avoiding or at least explaining scientific terms and providing extensive references the book should be useful for both laymen and scientists The quantitative information on some 200 fish taxa is derived from 72 000 stations fished by research vessels during the period 1977 2013

The area covers the northwest European shelf from west of Ireland to the central Baltic Sea and from Brittany to the Shetlands. Although the surveys extend beyond the shelf edge, only taxa reported at least once in waters less than 200 m are included. Typical deep water species and typical fresh water species are excluded. We hope this publication will contribute to gaining a better understanding of the ocean ecosystems.
