Terry L. Raettig, 1999 Hydrologic Effects of a Changing Forest Landscape National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Water Science and Technology Board, Committee on Hydrologic Impacts of Forest Management, 2008-12-19 Of all the outputs of forests water may be the most important Streamflow from forests provides two thirds of the nation s clean water supply Removing forest cover accelerates the rate that precipitation becomes streamflow therefore in some areas cutting trees causes a temporary increase in the volume of water flowing downstream This effect has spurred political pressure to cut trees to increase water supply especially in western states where population is rising However cutting trees for water gains is not sustainable increases in flow rate and volume are typically short lived and the practice can ultimately degrade water quality and increase vulnerability to flooding Forest hydrology the study of how water flows through forests can help illuminate the connections between forests and water but it must advance if it is to deal with today s complexities including climate change wildfires and changing patterns of development and ownership This book identifies actions that scientists forest and water managers and citizens can take to help sustain water resources from forests Necessary Work Max G. Geier, 2007 The H J Andrews Experimental Forest Andrews Forest is both an idea and a particular place It is an experimental landscape a natural resource and an ecosystem that has long inspired many people On the landscape of the Andrews Forest some of those people built the foundation for a collaborative community that fosters closer communication among the scientists and managers who struggle to understand how that ecosystem functions and to identify optimal management strategies for this and other national forest lands in the Pacific Northwest People who worked there generated new ideas about forest ecology and related ecosystems Working together in this place they generated ideas developed research proposals and considered the implications of their work They functioned as individuals in a science based community that emerged and evolved over time Individuals acted in a confluence of personalities personal choices and power relations In the context of this unique landscape and serendipitous opportunities those people created an exceptionally potent learning environment for science and management Science in this context was largely a story of personalities not simply a matter of test tubes experimental watersheds or top down management sponsored by a large federal agency or university Ideas flowed in a constructed environment that eventually linked people place and community with an emerging vision of ecosystem management Drawing largely on oral history this book explores the inner workings and structure of that science based community Science themes management issues specific research programs the landscape itself and the people who work there are all indispensable components of a complex web of community the Andrews group The first four chapters explore the origins of the Forest Service decision to establish an experimental forest in the west central Oregon Cascades in 1948 and the people and priorities that transformed that field site into a prominent facility for interdisciplinary research in the coniferous biome of the International Biological Programme in the 1970s Later chapters explore emerging links between long term research and interdisciplinary science at the Andrews Forest Those links shaped the groups response to concerns about logging in old growth forests during the 1980s and 1990s Concluding chapters explore how scientists in the group tried to adapt to new roles as public policy consultants in the 1990s without losing sight of the community values that they considered crucial to their earlier accomplishments North American Science Symposium ,1999 Proceedings RMRS. ,1998 Congressional Record United States. Congress,2000 The Congressional Record is the official record of the proceedings and debates of the United States Congress It is published daily when Congress is in session The Congressional Record began publication in 1873 Debates for sessions prior to 1873 are recorded in The Debates and Proceedings in the Congress of the United States 1789 1824 the Register of Debates in Congress 1824 1837 and the Congressional Globe 1833 1873 Controlling the Forest Understory Rebecca Jean McLain,2000 The States and Planning United States.
