Canadian Inland Seas I.P. Martini,2011-09-22 The various chapters of this book have been written by researchers who are still working in the Canadian Inland Seas region The chapters synthesize what is known about these seas yet much still is to be learnt It is hoped that this collection of information will serve as a springboard for future much needed studies in this fascinating diverse region and will stimulate comparative analyses with other subarctic and arctic basins of the world The Canadian Inland Seas are the only remnants albeit cold of the ancient cratonic marine basins which occupied central North America throughout the Paleozoic and part of the Mesozoic Precambrian rocks and gently dipping Paleozoic sedimentary rocks underlie the seas The area is also close to the centers of Pleistocene glaciations The coastal areas represent an emerged landscape of the post glacial Tyrrell sea as the region has been isostatically uplifted to about 350 meters since glacial times A total of 56 fish species inhabit Hudson Bay and James Bay Seals whales and one of the largest and southernmost populations of polar bears inhabit the seas as well The coastal areas are important habitats for migratory bird populations some of which migrate from as far away as Southern Argentina The ostic environment has preserved these regions relatively unchanged by man with only a major harbour at Churchill Manitoba which is active for part of the year and a second large rail terminal settlement in the south at Moosonee Ontario A few small native Indian and Inuit villages dot the coasts The seas are being affected indirectly by the damming of rivers for the generation of hydroelectric power and by drainage diversions towards the man made reservoirs A major project is being completed in Quebec east of James Bay but other rivers in Ontario and Manitoba have been dammed as well Undoubtedly freshwater is one of the more important resources of the area however its exploitation needs careful thought because of the possible long range effects on the environment particularly the coastal marshes which sustain much of the eastern American intercontinental migratory avifauna Other resources occur in the regions primarily minerals and perhaps petroleum For the most part however such resources remain to be discovered

Aboriginal Resource Use in Canada Kerry Abel, Jean Friesen, 1991-01-15 This volume addresses a wide range of topics related to Aboriginal resource use ranging from the pre contact period to the present The papers were originally presented at a conference held in 1988 at the University of Winnipeg Co editor Kerry Abel has written an introduction that outlines the main themes of the book She points out that it is difficult to know what the enshrinement of Aboriginal rights in the Canadian Constitution means without knowing exactly what constituted the Aboriginal interest in the land past and present She also summarizes some of the developments in the rapidly evolving concept of Aboriginal rights
