METAPHYSICS Aristotle, 2017-04-20 ALL men by nature desire to know An indication of this is the delight we take in our senses for even apart from their usefulness they are loved for themselves and above all others the sense of sight For not only with a view to action but even when we are not going to do anything we prefer seeing one might say to everything else The reason is that this most of all the senses makes us know and brings to light many differences between things By nature animals are born with the faculty of sensation and from sensation memory is produced in some of them though not in others And therefore the former are more intelligent and apt at learning than those which cannot remember those which are incapable of hearing sounds are intelligent though they cannot be taught e g the bee and any other race of animals that may be like it and those which besides memory have this sense of hearing can be taught The animals other than man live by appearances and memories and have but little of connected experience but the human race lives also by art and reasonings Now from memory experience is produced in men for the several memories of the same thing produce finally the capacity for a single experience And experience seems pretty much like science and art but really science and art come to men through experience for experience made art as Polus says but inexperience luck Now art arises when from many notions gained by experience one universal judgement about a class of objects is produced For to have a judgement that when Callias was ill of this disease this did him good and similarly in the case of Socrates and in many individual cases is a matter of experience but to judge that it has done good to all persons of a certain constitution marked off in one class when they were ill of this disease e g to phlegmatic or bilious people when burning with fevers this is a matter of art The Living Age ,1871 Text book of veterinary medicine. v. 5, 1909 James Law,1909 by United States. Introduction to sonar United States. Bureau of Naval Personnel,2018-09-29 SONAR sound navigation and ranging systems have many similarities to RADAR and electro optical systems Again detection is based on the propagation of waves between the target and detector There are active sonar systems where the wave propagates from the transmitter to the target and back to the receiver analogous to pulse echo radar There are also passive sonar systems where the target is the source of the energy which propagates to the receiver analogous to passive infrared detection Therefore a great deal of what has been discussed about these systems will also apply to sonar Sonar however differs fundamentally from radar and electro optics because the energy is transferred by acoustics waves propagating in water So we first begin by discussing the characteristics of acoustic waves Edinburgh Medical Journal ,1921
