Not A Hazardous Sport:

Not a Hazardous Sport Nigel Barley, 1988 The author an anthropologist describes his experiences in Indonesia and offers his humorous observations on the human condition

Not a Hazardous Sport Nigel Barley, 1988 Not a Hazardous Sport Nigel Barley, 2019-01-17 Nigel Barley travels to Sulawesi in Indonesia to live among the Torajan people known for their spectacular buildings and elaborate ancestor cults At last he is following his own advice to students to do their anthropological fieldwork somewhere where the inhabitants are beautiful friendly where you would like the food Barley explores the island on horseback and in buses jammed to the gunnels and meets priests faithful to the old animist rituals With his customary wit he takes the reader deep into this complex but adaptable society Reversing the habitual patterns of anthropology Barley then invites four Torajan carvers to London to build a traditional rice barn at the Museum of Mankind The observer becomes the observed Now it is Barley's turn to explain the absurdities of an English city to his bemused guests in a glorious finale to a trilogy of anthropological journeys that began with The Innocent Anthropologist and continued with A Plague of Caterpillars both published by Eland A postscript penned thirty years after these adventures had been concluded confirms the rich arc of this story line of role reversals

Extreme Landscapes of Leisure Patrick Lavolette, 2016-04-15 In recent years there has been an increased engagement throughout the social sciences with the study of extreme places and practices Dangerous games and adventure tours have shifted from being marginal exotic or mad to being more than merely acceptable They are now exemplary mainstream even there are a variety of new types increasing numbers of people are doing them and they are being appropriated and have infiltrated more and more contexts This book argues that hazardous sports and adventure tourism have become rather paradoxical As a set of activities where players and holidaymakers are closer to death or danger than they would otherwise be they are the complete opposite of normal games or vacations Adventure sports and tours reverse the general definition of a holiday as being an escape from the seriousness of everyday life as in most cases they are innately serious requiring as they do life or death decision making Beginning with the rise in colonial explorations and moving on to consider the Dangerous Sports Club of Oxford this book examines the increasing phenomena of adventure sports such as bungee jumping cliff jumping or tomb stoning surfing and parkour within a framework of positive risk It explores how certain assumptions about knowledge agency the body and nature are beginning to coalesce around newly developing spheres of social relations Additionally extreme games have become activities that are germane to the dawning of green social thought and so the book also addresses issues that deal with the intimate connections that exist between pleasure and the moral responsibility towards the environment
