Sordat, 1984-02-20 Patient-Derived Mouse Models of Cancer Robert M. Hoffman, 2017-08-01 This text highlights seminal discoveries and also provides comprehensive and state of the art approach to mouse models of human patient tumors. These areas include training basic techniques as well as general troubleshooting. Subsequent chapters focus on the different mouse models of patient tumors including the various strains of immunodeficient mice currently available and the transplantation techniques that can be used as well as state of the art imaging techniques. Practical applications of the models from drug discovery genome analysis to personalized treatment are also covered. Written by experts in that field each of these sections address these critical issues. A brief review of the existing literature addressing the particular topic follows in each section. Presently there is no single source to provide information on technique and uses of mouse models of human patient tumors. Patient Derived Mouse Models of Cancer will satisfy this need for cancer researchers oncologists pharmaceutical and biotechnology industry scientists as well as molecular biologists studying in vivo systems. ILAR News, 1983 Journal of the National Cancer Institute, 1979 Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965-70 Tumor Models in Cancer Research Beverly A. Teicher, 2001-11-07. Beverly A Teicher and a panel of leading experts comprehensively describe for the first time in many years the state of the art in animal tumor model research. The wide array of models detailed form the basis for the selection of compounds and treatments that go into clinical testing of patients and include syngeneic models human tumor xenograft models orthotopic models metastatic models transgenic models and gene knockout models. Synthesizing many years experience with all the major in vivo models currently available for the study of malignant disease. Tumor Models in Cancer Research provides preclinical and clinical cancer researchers alike with a comprehensive guide to the selection of these models their effective use and the optimal interpretation of their results. Progress in Allergy Vol. 26 K. Continuous cell lines derived from human cancers are the most widely used resource in laboratory based cancer research. The first 3 volumes of this series on Human Cell Culture are devoted to these cancer cell lines. The chapters in these first 3 volumes have a common aim. Their purpose is to address 3 questions of fundamental importance to the relevance of human cancer cell lines as model systems of each type of cancer. 1 Do the cell lines available accurately represent the clinical presentation 2 Do the cell lines accurately represent the histopathology of the original tumors 3 Do the cell lines accurately represent the molecular genetics of this type of cancer. The cancer cell lines available are derived in most cases from the more aggressive and advanced cancers There are few cell lines derived from low grade organ confined cancers This gap can be filled with conditionally immortalized human cancer cell lines We do not know why the success rate for establishing cell lines is so low for some types of cancer and so high for others The histopathology of the tumor of origin and the extent to which the derived cell line retains the differentiated features of that tumor are critical The concept that a single cell line derived from a tumor at a particular site is representative of tumors at that site is naive and misleading
