Abstract: The nutritional needs of the elderly and federal programs designed to help meet these needs are discussed. Many factors affect the nutritional status of the elderly, including economic, medical, and environmental conditions. Many of the elderly have insufficient incomes to fulfill their nutritional needs. Many have chronic illnesses affecting the intake and utilization of nutrients. Others are prohibited from obtaining help because of distance, ignorance, or fear. Many elderly have protein and vitamin deficient diets while ingesting large amounts of fat and carbohydrates. To correct these inequities, the Title VII Nutrition Program for the Aged was funded beginning in 1973. While the initial program was limited in scope, in 1975 it was expanded to more sites and served more of the elderly. Nutrition Support to Elderly Women Michelle B.

Pierce, 2000 First Published in 2000, Routledge is an imprint of Taylor & Francis, an informal company. Nutrition in the Elderly A. Horwitz, 1989 Abstract: This book examines the state of knowledge on the relationship of nutrition to well-being in old age. Topics include epidemiological and social aspects of nutrition in the elderly, assessment of nutritional status in the elderly, nutritional requirements and recommended dietary allowances for the elderly, main diseases of the elderly associated with nutrition, nutritional factors influencing organ function in the elderly, and preventive medicine and public health measures for improving nutrition in the elderly. Nutrition and the Elderly Charlotte Kenton, 1981 Nutrition, Aging, and the Elderly D.E. Danford, H.N. Munro, 2013-11-11 The proportion of the population over 65 years of age is increasing steadily in most industrialized countries. In the United States, the proportion of elderly people has risen from four percent in 1900 to 11 % in 1978 and is projected to be 14% by the year 2000. The occurrence of debilitating chronic diseases in the elderly increases with each additional year. These diseases, along with the natural loss of tissue function that occurs throughout adult life, impose a heavy burden on the health care system. Nutrition plays an important etiologic role in many of these degenerative changes. Consequently, the aging segment of the population presents a challenge to the nutrition scientist, who should be able to recommend optimal intakes of nutrients to minimize the functional losses associated with aging and to optimize the health of those already elderly This sixth volume in the series Human Nutrition A Comprehensive Treatise provides a conspectus of the various interactions of nutrition with the aging process and a comprehensive survey of current knowledge of the amounts of individual nutrients needed by the elderly The volume begins with a general survey of the multifaceted relationship of nutrition to aging followed by four chapters on how nutrition can affect age related changes in selected body functions The next six chapters cover the available evidence regarding the needs of the elderly for dietary energy protein calcium trace elements vitamins and fiber

Nutrition for the Elderly Anthony August Albanese, 1980 Abstract The effects of the aging process on the nutritional needs of the elderly and its relationship to their maintenance of normal health are reviewed Physiological mental social physical and economic changes associated with aging must be considered to provide adequate nutrition for the elderly Topics discussed are requirements for individual nutrients disorders prevalent among the aging diabetes cardiovascular disease obesity skeletal bone loss and anemia methods of treating these disorders and drug nutrient interactions An appendix includes tables of Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances food composition food sources of nutrients and normal blood values

The Role of Nutrition in Maintaining Health in the Nation's Elderly Institute of Medicine, Food and Nutrition Board, Committee on Nutrition Services for Medicare Beneficiaries, 2000-06-09 Malnutrition and obesity are both common among Americans over age 65 There are also a host of other medical conditions from which older people and other Medicare beneficiaries suffer that could be improved with appropriate nutritional intervention Despite that access to a nutrition professional is very limited Do nutrition services benefit older people in terms of morbidity mortality or quality of life Which health professionals are best qualified to provide such services What would be the cost to Medicare of such services Would the cost be offset by reduced illness in this population This book addresses these questions provides recommendations for nutrition services for the elderly and considers how the coverage policy should be approached and practiced The book discusses the role of nutrition therapy in the management of a number of diseases It also examines what the elderly receive in the way of nutrition services along the continuum of care settings and addresses the areas of expertise needed by health professionals to provide appropriate nutrition services and therapy

Nutrition in Aging Eleanor D. Schlenker, 1997 This text examines the sociological and physiological aspects of ageing and the manner in which they affect the nutritional needs of individuals The coverage of the theories of ageing is updated and so provides a sound basis for understanding the process of ageing as a natural one New findings in geriatric nutrition are discussed ensuring that students have a current basis for their studies The chapter on food selection patterns discusses how ethnic social and cultural patterns affect the likely response to dietary intervention and provides students with a guide as to how to approach future clients in order to ensure the greatest likelihood of a successful interaction The updated chapter on drugs and nutrition provides a background to drug Longitudinal Evaluation of the National Nutrition Program for the Elderly Kirschner Associates, 1979 Abstract The Nutrition Program for the Elderly addresses dietary health and social problems of older persons. The first of 5 annual waves of evaluative data was obtained from 91 meal sites through interviews, project and site records, and observations. Included is a description of the program and local variations, an assessment of the impact of the program on participants, and program characteristics which influence that impact. Differences are described among recent entrants, long-term participants, former participants, and non-participating neighbors. Specific impact variables such as nutritional and health status, isolation, life satisfaction, longevity, and independent living are examined. Other issues of concern include enrollment, relationship of outside social activity to program participation, level of participation, Area Agency role in nutrition projects, and delivery of support services in meals, transportation, recreation, nutrition education, shopping assistance, and health care.

Nutrition in the Elderly, 1992 Nutritional Intervention in the Aging Process H.J. Armbrecht, J.M. Prendergast, R.M. Coe, 2012-12-06 There has been much popular and scientific interest in the fields of nutrition and aging in recent years. As the importance of proper nutrition in children and young adults becomes more fully understood, it is natural to wonder if proper nutrition could play a similar role in later life. Recent research has indicated that nutrition can potentially intervene in the aging process in at least two ways. First, studies in animals and humans have shown that nutrition can be used to improve functional status, which in turn is related to perceived quality of life. Second, nutritional manipulation has been used to extend maximal life span in laboratory animals. How these interesting findings apply to the human situation remains to be explored. The purpose of this book is twofold. The first is to present recent advances in our basic knowledge of how nutrition and aging interact with each other. The second is to discuss some applications of this knowledge to the care of the elderly patient. The interaction between aging and nutrition is complex because each may act on the other in either a synergistic or antagonistic fashion. Aging may alter the nutritional status of the elderly by affecting the way nutrients are absorbed and utilized by the body. Aging may also influence food intake and therefore nutritional status by decreasing the palatability of food. The environment of the elderly may change so they are less likely to eat well-balanced meals.
