- Little is known about how current special education administration preparation standards are perceived by special education personnel.
- This survey examined the perceived importance of the Council for Exceptional Children's most current standards for special education administration competencies.
- Findings suggested that ratings of the importance of the Council for Exceptional Children's special education administration specialty skills were similar between directors and their stakeholders.
- Strengthening the role of parent and advocacy agencies and participating in professional administrative organizations were rated the lowest across all respondents.
- The findings and implications can help special education administration preparation programs and relevant professional organizations to devise more effective training and professional development to enhance competencies.

Key words: Special Education Leadership, Special Education Director, Special Education Administration.

Effective leadership and administrative support for special education in today's U.S. public schools has gained increasing attention in the literature (Crockett, Becker, & Quinn, 2009; Rinehart, 2017; Thompson, 2017). In a school district, the highest special education administrative position is usually called a director of special education/special programs. This specific administrator oversees the entire special education department, including programs, services, personnel, and budgets. The director also supervises other administrators such as special education coordinators who directly work under the director (Boscardin, 2005; Special Education Guide, n.d.). Although the scope of work responsibilities among special education directors may vary, their leadership is critical for providing students with exceptionalities with adequate access to a free and appropriate public education (FAPE; DiPaola, Tschannen-Moran, & Walther-Thomas, 2004; Individuals With Disabilities Education Improvement Act [IDEA], 2004; Thompson, 2017). Boscardin (2005) noted that special education directors support school-based special education administrators by fostering collaboration among all service providers to ensure effective implementation of special education programs while maintaining compliance with federal law and state regulations.

To understand the knowledge base supporting the practice of special education leadership and administration, Crockett et al. (2009) analyzed 474 abstracts of articles published in professional journals from 1970 to 2009. The top five identified themes

An Examination of how Educational Administration Programs Prepare Principals in Special Education Issues , 2003 The passage of P L 94 142 greatly expanded the principal s role in serving the educational needs of all children While some insights regarding administrator preparation were gained through the Hirth and Valesky 1991 study completed in 1989 the current status of the preparation of principals on special education issues was not known Therefore the purpose of the study was to examine how university educational administration programs prepare principals in special education issues Ninety four department chairs of educational administration programs responded to a web based survey which was developed for the study In addition to basic demographic information participants were asked to respond to a range of questions regarding certification endorsements course offerings the perceived degree to which special education issues should be addressed and the degree of effectiveness in addressing them and current methods for preparing future administrators on issues specific to special education Based on the findings of this study the following conclusions were drawn 1 While department chairpersons value the inclusion of key special education topics in educational leadership preparation programs and perceive their programs to effectively address those topics there is a perceived need for improving the effectiveness of preparing principals in those same special education topics areas 2 A combination of university based and field based experiences is the most common method for addressing student learning in key special education topics School Law is the primary course used to address key special education topics 3 Nearly half of all educational leadership preparation programs plan to change the way they address special education issues through a variety of approaches 4 An average of one half of all programs that offer administrator certificates or licenses require a general knowledge of special education which means that one half of all programs do not require aspiring principals to learn about special education issues 5 Variables such as faculty size faculty background in special education membership in UCEA and NCATE accreditation are not related to how programs prepare principals in the area of special education The study2s results hold important implications for program improvement to prepare principals in special education issues and further research

Ed.D. Programs as Incubators for Social Justice Leadership Antonio L.

Ellis, 2016-02-10 This book shares the thoughts of mostly North American scholars on many interrelated topics that have not previously been linked in academic research. The focus of the book is the belief that the Ed D can prepare highly competent justice oriented scholars who will be engaged with communities. Among these future leaders the contributors envision educators who not only lead public schools but also private foundations, not for profit organizations and community centers. An outstanding feature of this volume is that each chapter highlights existing and emerging issues such as but not limited to candidate recruitment and admission policies, program funding fees and student expenses, academic support services, faculty recruitment, compensation, evaluation and promotion models, on site on line instruction, internship policy, opportunities for graduate student employment, publishing and conference engagement, student supervision protocols and dissertation and capstone project parameters. In addition the book explores cultural and socio political contexts, public private sector relationships and the kinds of legislation that frame Ed D theory, policy and practice from a social justice perspective. At its best, higher education is an indispensable space for spotlighting challenging and addressing injustice. This important volume offers us the conceptual, methodological, empirical and pedagogical tools necessary for understanding the relationship between doctoral education and social justice work. Antonio Ellis has assembled an impressive array of scholars who help us understand the promise and possibility of Ed D programs. Marc Lamont Hill, Host for the Black Entertainment Network Contributor for CNN and Distinguished Professor of African American Studies at Morehouse College. This volume helps to clarify what is meant by social justice in school leadership settings and provides both philosophical and theoretical perspectives as well as strategies and curricular content that can assist in developing a common sense understanding of social justice. The development of a mental frame of reference is critical to being able to transfer that understanding and curricular content into beliefs and practices. As a professor of educational leadership and a college administrator I am most pleased to find a volume that provides perspectives and strategies which can be employed by academicians teaching in leadership programs and practitioners as they lead and prepare others to become leaders.
