Bornstein, 2002 Completely revised and expanded from four to five volumes this new edition of the Handbook of Parenting appears at a time that is momentous in the history of parenting Parenting and the family are today in a greater state of flux question and redefinition than perhaps ever before We are witnessing the emergence of striking permutations on the theme of parenting blended families lesbian and gay parents and teen versus fifties first time moms and dads One cannot but be awed on the biological front by technology that now not only renders postmenopausal women capable of childbearing but also presents us with the possibility of designing babies Similarly on the sociological front single parenthood is a modern day fact of life adult child dependency is on the rise and parents are ever less certain of their own roles even in the face of rising environmental and institutional demands that they take increasing responsibility for their offspring The Handbook of Parenting concerns itself with different types of parents mothers and fathers single adolescent and adoptive parents basic characteristics of parenting behaviors knowledge beliefs and expectations about parenting forces that shape parenting evolution genetics biology employment social class culture environment and history problems faced by parents handicap marital difficulties drug addiction and practical concerns of parenting how to promote children s health foster social adjustment and cognitive competence and interact with school legal and public officials Contributors to the Handbook of Parenting have worked in different ways toward understanding all these

from a variety of perspectives highlighting the complexity of working within the field and the need for a truly interdisciplinary approach. It argues that only a holistic understanding of each perspective will allow a clear future for early childhood education within Australia and that all government parties should provide better outcomes around policy and provision to ensure the support and development of the sector. Chapters offer insights into how children and families are positioned in educational reform by examining current government policy as well as individual and collective initiatives. Key paradigms considered include positivist, behavioural, developmental, economic, sociocultural, and postmodern models. Garvis and Manning identify challenges to the field and propose improvements needed to develop an interdisciplinary approach to help close the disadvantage gap on educational outcomes. With recommendations aimed at stakeholders within different disciplines, it is hoped that this book will encourage significant improvements to early childhood education and care within Australia. Providing important insights into the landscape of early childhood education and care, this book will promote new ways of thinking of policy and provision development for the future.
