Present and Future Trends in TEFL María Elena García Sánchez, 2001-06-04 The aim of this book is to develop a framework for describing the field as it currently exists together with well established views As far as possible the book describes rather than prescribes to avoid taking up any single approach or theory regarding what constitutes the legitimate approach to TEFL research Of course the personal views of the authors will colour the account provided as it is impossible to separate description from interpretation Thus in a way this book involves the theories beliefs knowledge methods and practices of foreign language teachers and how these can enhance teacher education This book is planned for pre service or in service teachers of a foreign language at primary secondary or tertiary levels although the criteria examined are useful to teachers of English as a foreign language teacher trainers or modern language teachers involved in teaching any language whether in Spain or overseas Our main purpose is to help readers to help themselves Accordingly the reader is encouraged to be engaged in an examination of foreign language teaching and learning in hope of improving his her practice and making language teaching more controllable more interesting and more effective The chapters are organized into four sections In Section I three chapters describe some perspectives in teacher education In the first chapter Jos M Vez focuses on the hypothesis that the key to producing well qualified EFL teachers is to greatly strengthen their professional learning across the continuum of a career in the foreign language classroom He emphasizes the fact that foreign language teaching must become a learning profession in order to prompt greater learning among foreign language students and describes the innovative aspects of foreign language teacher education In the second chapter Sheena Davies provides an overview of language teacher education today with particular reference to English language teaching discusses some current issues associated with the field and gives notice of her experience working with both native speaker and non native speaker teachers of English from all over the world on a variety of in service and pre service courses and seminars In chapter 3 we examine the perspectives on teacher thinking and teachers beliefs in general and about language learning in particular

Academic and Research Literacy Practices of Final Year Teacher Trainees in Luanda, Angola Celeste Sambeny, 2016-06-22 Academic and Research Literacy Practices of Final Year Teacher Trainees in Luanda Angola presents a detailed study of students and lecturers at higher teacher training institutions where English is taught as a medium of instruction and specialisation As such the book will help raise the awareness of educators teachers and supervisors of the need to be more supportive to students and will highlight the importance of increased responsibility on the part of the students regarding their studies especially during the process of writing their research reports Practical experience has shown that in most classrooms students are typically asked to produce texts for one single audience namely the teacher or the lecturer who already knows what constitutes an acceptable response However in many classrooms teachers and lecturers tend to believe that literacy can be defined as the ability to encode and decode texts the ability to decipher the main idea of a reading passage or to write a text that obeys the general conventions of language usage such as syntax organisation and idea development The central argument of this book however is that at higher levels of the educational system in Angola academic and research literacy practices are at best questionable and at worst harmful An extensive re evaluation of assumptions regarding student capability and what it means to be a literate in the twenty first century information society is of critical importance Such a re examination allows for extensive reflection on current practices and a powerful critique of traditional academic and research literacy methods and suggests ways in which practices of quality teaching and learning may be implemented
