Preventing Mental Illness in Practice Dr Jennifer Newton,Jennifer Newton,2013-04-15 In this follow up to Preventing Mental Illness Jennifer Newton describes real life examples of good practice in preventive mental health Five areas covering the life span have been identified and promising strategies are described in detail what is provided how the target group is engaged the resources required management problems and evidence of effectiveness Interviews with both clients and providers help to bring to life the descriptions as we learn how the support came to be needed and what benefits they themselves feel have been reaped These descriptive studies together with criteria for judging the efficacy of interventions provide an excellent resource for planners and policy makers The book will also be invaluable to those who seek to implement preventive policies in their day to day work lives such as social workers clinical psychologists health visitors community psychiatric nurses and general practitioners Preventing Mental Ill-Health Jennifer Newton,2013-05-07 Is there any evidence that we can reduce the incidence of mental ill health Is it possible to prevent recurrence of mental ill health Aspirations to achieve both these goals have featured in mental health policy and practice for over 100 years This comprehensive and accessible book draws on research on the development and persistence of behavioural problems in childhood adult depression and schizophrenia The association between social disadvantage and mental ill health as well as the need for preventive care to start from conception and the crucial importance of maternal mental health are discussed. A variety of prominent programmes which have good evidence of efficacy are described. These include Targeted approaches with individuals and families. Macro policies affecting housing and employment. Lifestyle contributions such as diet and exercise. However, some attempts to achieve preventive benefits have not succeeded, and reflecting on these problems is an important feature of this review. Jennifer Newton has written extensively on these issues for over twenty years, and her careful examination of the research literature provides a succinct overview of the state of current knowledge which will benefit mental health professionals and students of health psychology and public health. It also takes a life course perspective and considers how and why vulnerability persists through childhood into adult life, so will interest those whose work focuses on child well-being.

Community Series In Mental-Health-Related Stigma and Discrimination: Prevention, Role, and Management Strategies, volume II Renato de Filippis, Mohammadreza Shalbafan, Samer El Hayek, 2024-03-06

This Research Topic is the second volume of the Community Series In Mental Health Related Stigma and Discrimination Prevention Role and Management Strategies. Please see the first volume here. Despite the tremendous progress and successes achieved in diagnostics, therapy, and rehabilitation in psychiatry over the past few decades, the stigma towards mental health patients, their relatives, and caregivers and healthcare professionals is still present. Social stigma, in particular, represents a major obstacle to maintaining adequate mental health care. This increases reluctance to seek help, delays patients' diagnosis, and limits their compliance and adherence to treatment. In the long term, this reduces psychiatric rehabilitation effectiveness and causes a burden to healthcare providers and society alike. The main goal of this Research Topic is to evaluate the impact and role of stigma in all its forms on individuals with psychiatric disorders, their caregivers, and mental health providers.

Policies and Practices for Mental Health in Europe ,2008 This WHO report co funded by the European Commission gives an overview of policies and practices for mental health in 42 Member States of the European Region. A large majority of countries have made significant progress over the past few years and several are world leaders in mental health promotion, mental disorder prevention, activities, service reform and human rights. Nevertheless, this report also identifies weaknesses in Europe, some systematic such as a lack of consensus on definitions and of compatible data collection and others such as the need for development and investment across several areas. It identifies gaps in information where further work must be done and is a baseline against which progress can be measured towards the vision and the milestones of the Mental Health Declaration for Europe. The data were obtained from the ministries of health of 42 European Member States. Over 150 figures and tables in the report demonstrate the diversity across the European Region and allow country to country comparisons of indicators such as numbers of psychiatrists, financing, community services, training of the workforce, the prescription of anti-depressants and representation of users and carers.

Preventing Psychological Disorders in Service Members and Their Families Institute of Medicine, Board on the Health of Select Populations, Committee on the Assessment of Resiliency and Prevention Programs for Mental and Behavioral Health in Service Members and Their Families, 2014-02-11

Being deployed to a war zone can result in numerous adverse psychological health conditions. It is well documented in the literature that there are high rates of psychological disorders among military personnel serving in Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan and Operation Iraqi Freedom in Iraq as well as among the service members' families. For service members' families, the degree of hardship and negative consequences rises with the amount of the service members' exposure to traumatic or life-altering experiences. Adult and child members of the families of service members who experience wartime deployments have been found to be at increased risk for symptoms of psychological disorders and to be more likely to use mental health services. In an effort to provide early recognition and early intervention that meet the psychological health needs of service members and their families, DOD currently screens for many of these conditions at numerous points during the military life cycle and is implementing structural interventions that support the improved integration of military line personnel, non-medical caregivers and clinicians such as RESPECT, Mil Re-engineering Systems of Primary Care Treatment in the Military, embedded mental health providers and the Patient-Centered Medical Home. Preventing Psychological Disorders in Service Members and Their Families evaluates risk and protective factors in military and family populations and suggests that prevention strategies are needed at multiple levels: individual, interpersonal, institutional, community and societal, in order to address the influence that these factors have on psychological health. This report reviews and critiques reintegration programs and prevention strategies for PTSD, depression, recovery, support and prevention of substance abuse, suicide and interpersonal violence.
