Preston, Sybille Sachs, 2022 The modern corporation is an institution of enormous economic power and social impact Corporations have grown in size and numbers all over the world because of their ability to mobilize productive resources and create new wealth The evolution of the corporation has given rise to new opportunities and challenges that require a redefinition of the corporation and its objectives The legitimacy of the corporation as an institution its license to operate within society depends not only on its success in wealth creation but also on its ability to meet the expectations of diverse constituents who contribute to its existence and success These constituencies and interests are the corporation's stakeholders resource providers customers suppliers alliance partners and social and political actors Consequently the corporation must be seen as an institution engaged in mobilizing resources to create wealth and benefits for all its stakeholders This book presents a stakeholder view of the corporation in both theoretical and practical terms Its central proposition is that organizational wealth is created or destroyed through a corporation's interactions with its stakeholders Effective stakeholder management develops and utilizes relationships between a corporation and its stakeholders for mutual benefit thereby accomplishing the fundamental purpose of wealth creation Following the empirical maxim that Corporations are what they do the authors examine the stakeholder management practices of three major corporations Cummins Engine Company Motorola and the Royal Dutch Shell Group These companies are very different and their current stakeholder management policies and practices have evolved in very different ways However they share a common commitment to humanistic values and to continuous learning Their varied experiences illustrate some of the opportunities and challenges of stakeholder management and confirm the appropriateness of the stakeholder view of the corporation as a basis for strategy and policy

The Corporate Social Audit Raymond A. Bauer, Dan H. Fenn, 1977-09-29 Much has been said about the general subject of how to measure a corporation's social performance but little has been contributed to answering this fundamental question. Thus in November 1971 Russell Sage Foundation sponsored a development effort aimed at examining the state of the art and at suggesting a program of research that would advance that state. Raymond Bauer and Dan Fenn have provided us with a first product: a state of the art conception and description and recommendations for future development. They are to be commended for their astute considerations and their clear thinking in the murky pond of corporate social audits. Their effort has provided the social science community with a point of departure for future research in the area. Eleanor Bernert Sheldon. A Volume in the Russell Sage Foundation's Social Science Frontiers Series.
