Reduction of School Violence Beverley Holden Johns, 1997 Reducing School Shootings William H. Jeynes, 2021-02-01 This book calls for a multidimensional and comprehensive approach to reduce the number of school shootings rather than the simplistic unidimensional strategy that is commonly advocated Based on meta analyses examining which variables are most often related to positive changes in violent student behavior it also integrates other research and historical trends in order to formulate recommendations regarding how to reduce school shootings The topic of school shootings is one of the most vital issues in society today because 1 schools should be the safest places on Earth for children 2 if students do not feel safe they are not going to learn very well in school and 3 it is of such great concern to parents and society at large as evinced by the degree of news coverage that school shooting incidents receive Sadly despite the gravity of the problem many people tend to either respond in an emotional way or propose simplistic solutions Gun control legislation alone will not solve the problem instead it calls for a multi disciplinary and multifaceted approach involving parents teachers schools and healthcare This book investigates the status quo goals and solutions pursuing a fact based approach This book is of special interest to the academic community national leaders and other policymakers It is also suitable for courses on education psychology sociology criminal justice and other areas of law It will also appeal to the general audience

Carrington, 2002 There was a day when society shielded its children from the often cruel world At least in the so called developed countries the exposure of children to the worst perversions society can conjure up has never been greater Children have reached the exalted level of being treated seduced and targeted to as a market This bibliography brings together the literature providing access by subject groupings as well as author and title indexes A New Model of School Discipline David R. Dupper, 2010-03-25 Mounting evidence shows that zero tolerance policies suspensions and restrictive security policies fail to improve school safety and student behaviors and are linked with increased risk of dropping out Minority students are suspended at disproportionate rates and over a million cases of corporal punishment are reported each year Against this dismal backdrop David Dupper presents a transformative new model of school discipline that is preventive proactive and relationship based Unlike traditional punitive and exclusionary practices the model developed in this Workshop volume focuses on enhancing students connection to school through building relationships and bolstering social skills Drawing on the latest research about what works and what doesn t this highly practical guide catalogs an array of proven and promising practices designed to engage instead of exclude students Rather than illustrate a one size fits all approach it guides practitioners and administrators in identifying their school s unique needs and selecting appropriate strategies for use at the universal targeted and remedial levels A five step strategic planning model helps schools transition toward a holistic relationship based approach to discipline Boxes bullets evidence summaries and practice tips make this an accessible forward thinking resource for school personnel seeking to engage students and reduce behavior problems in the most effective pragmatic and cost efficient manner possible School Violence in Context Rami Benbenishty, Ron Avi Astor, 2005-02-10 Drawing on one of the most comprehensive and representative studies of school violence ever conducted Benbenishty and Astor explore and differentiate the many manifestations of victimization in schools providing a new model for understanding school violence in context The authors make striking use of the geopolitical climate of the Middle East to model school violence in terms of its context within as well as outside of the school site This pioneering new work is unique in that it uses empirical data to show which variables and factors are similar across different cultures and which variables appear unique to different cultures This empirical contrast of universal with culturally specific patterns is sorely needed in the school violence literature The authors innovative research maps the contours of verbal social physical and sexual victimization and weapons possession as well as staff initiated violence against students presenting some startling findings along the way When comparing schools in Israel with schools in California the authors demonstrate for the first time that for most violent events the patterns of violent behaviors have the same relationship for different age groups genders and nations Conversely they highlight specific kinds of violence that are strongly influenced by culture They reveal for example how Arab boys encounter much more boy to boy sexual harassment than their Jewish peers and that teacher initiated victimization of students constitutes a significant and often overlooked type of school violence especially among certain cultural groups Crucially the authors expand the paradigm of understanding school violence to encompass the intersection of cultural ethnic neighborhood and family characteristics with intra school factors such as teacher student dynamics anti violence policies student participation grade level and religious and gender divisions It is only by understanding the multiple contexts of school violence they argue that truly effective prevention programs interventions research agendas and policies can be implemented In an age of heightened concern over school security this study has enormous implications for school violence theory research and policy throughout the world The patterns that emerge from the authors analysis form a blueprint for the research agenda needed to address new and exciting theoretical and practical questions regarding the intersections of context and school victimization The unique perspective on school violence will undoubtedly strike a chord with all readers informing scholars and students across the fields of social work psychology education sociology public health and peace conflict studies Its clearly written and accessible style will appeal to teachers principals policy makers and parents interested in the authors practical discussion of policy and intervention implications making this an invaluable tool for understanding preventing and handling violence in schools throughout the world

Greene, 2007 First published in 1996 this work covers all the major sectors of policing in the United States Political events such as the terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 have created new policing needs while affecting public opinion about law enforcement This third edition of the Encyclopedia examines the theoretical and practical aspects of law enforcement discussing past and present practices

School Violence Prevention: Examining the Impact of Social Emotional Learning Programs Jamie Taylor, 2020 Existing literature demonstrates that violence particularly youth violence can be prevented and as a result many prevention programs are employed in school settings Among the approaches to school violence prevention are zero tolerance policies These harsh policy measures increasingly prove unsuccessful in reducing school violence show negative impacts on school climate and

are disproportionately applied to underrepresented minorities This growing evidence led many schools to explore other avenues of violence prevention through restorative practices and incorporating social emotional learning SEL into the curriculum However present literature specific to SEL programs tend to focus only on impacts on academic achievement and learning The present study will add to this growing literature on the impact of SEL programs by examining school violence and examining the extent to which schools use restorative practices as an alternative to exclusionary discipline practices This study uses school level data from the 2015 16 school year obtained from the US Department of Education National Center for Education Statistics School Survey on Crime and Safety Using a negative binomial regression this study examines the impact of several school violence prevention programs on the total number of violent and criminal incidents occurring at school Ordered logistic regression is then used to examine the sensitivity of the results to the measurement of the dependent variable Results from the study did not show significant reductions in school violence when social emotional learning programs were present however several takeaways are presented on exploring alternative strategies to reducing violence improving the school environment or meeting state or federal guidelines There is no one size fits all approach to reducing school violence especially since each school environment is different One key conclusion from this paper is that restorative practices and social emotional learning are under utilized and offer opportunities for decision makers to explore
