The Ecocentrists Keith Makoto Woodhouse, 2018-06-05 Disenchanted with the mainstream environmental movement a new more radical kind of environmental activist emerged in the 1980s Radical environmentalists used direct action from blockades and tree sits to industrial sabotage to save a wild nature that they believed to be in a state of crisis Questioning the premises of liberal humanism they subscribed to an ecocentric philosophy that attributed as much value to nature as to people Although critics dismissed them as marginal radicals posed a vital question that mainstream groups too often ignored Is environmentalism a matter of common sense or a fundamental critique of the modern world In The Ecocentrists Keith Makoto Woodhouse offers a nuanced history of radical environmental thought and action in the late twentieth century United States Focusing especially on the group Earth First Woodhouse explores how radical environmentalism responded to both postwar affluence and a growing sense of physical limits While radicals challenged the material and philosophical basis of industrial civilization they glossed over the ways economic inequality and social difference defined people's different relationships to the nonhuman world Woodhouse discusses how such views increasingly set Earth First at odds with movements focused on social justice and examines the implications of ecocentrism's sweeping critique of human society for the future of environmental protection A groundbreaking intellectual history of environmental politics in the United States The Ecocentrists is a timely study that considers humanism and individualism in an environmental age and makes a case for skepticism and doubt in environmental thought

Northwest Forest Plan, the first 15 years (1994-2008), 2011 General Technical Report PNW-GTR, 1987 General Technical Report PNW., 1978 Philosophy in the American West Josh Hayes, Gerard

Kuperus, Brian Treanor, 2020-06-10 Philosophy in the American West explores the physical ecological cultural and narrative environments associated with the western United States reflecting on the relationship between people and the places that sustain them The American West has long been recognized as having significance From Crèvecoeur's early observations in Letters from an American Farmer 1782 to Thoreau's reflections in Walden 1854 to twentieth century thoughts on the legacy of a vanishing frontier the West has played a pivotal role in the American narrative and in the American sense of self But while the nature of westernness has been touched on by historians sociologists and especially novelists and poets this collection represents the first attempt to think philosophically about the nature of the West and its influence on us The contributors take up thinkers that have been associated with Continental Philosophy and pair them with writers poets and artists of the West And while this collection seeks to loosen the cords that tie philosophy to Europe the traditions of continental philosophy phenomenology hermeneutics deconstruction and others offer deep resources for thinking through the particularity of place This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of Philosophy as well as those working in Ecocriticism and the Environmental Humanities more broadly reassessment of the conventional meaning and conceptualization of loss She proposes that such loss is best understood through infinitesimal diachronic shifts occurring in the elemental constellations that structure the world water fire air and earth and humanity's incremental inability to cognitively and affectively make sense of this world increasingly transformed by anthropogenic forces Through a generous yet critical reading of a broad range of interdisciplinary sources tracing changes in our relationship to the elemental over time Oele's scholarship plumbs the history of philosophy as much as it pulls from Indigenous philosophies continental thought mythologies anthropological and historical sources science and ecology The book's argumentative arc ultimately directs our attention toward constructive transformations in our cognitive and affective habits and it argues that trust can bring us beyond elemental loss Fire in California's Ecosystems Neil G.
