Reflecting Visions:

Galileo's Visions Marco Piccolino, Nicholas J. Wade, 2013-12-05 Galileo is known as a pioneer of science especially of mechanics and astronomy but far less attention has been paid to his work on the senses generally and more specifically on vision In this book two experts on the history of science look at the novel ways in which Galileo looked at the heavens through his telescope and in the process emphasised the importance of contrast phenomena and visual resolution for all observations He also described the senses and perception in terms that found an echo in doctrines advanced by nineteenth century sensory physiologists In a fascinating and accessible style Marco Piccolino and Nick Wade analyse the scientific and philosophical work of Galileo Galilei from the particular viewpoint of his approach to the senses and especially vision as a means of acquiring trustworthy knowledge about the constitution of the world For Galileo evidence from the senses was potentially ambiguous hence reliable information capable of penetrating the complexity of reality could only be obtained by interpreting the sensory data critically The philosophical background of Galileo s attitude to the senses was his awareness that nature had not developed a specific language aimed at communicating with senses generally and human senses in particular Galileo s analysis of the senses corresponded closely to a fundamental tenet of modern sensory physiology and psychophysics the absence in the world of specific sensory signals like sounds colours tastes and odours Fully illustrated throughout this book is an important contribution to psychology and the vision sciences but more broadly to our knowledge of a pioneering figure in the history of science

Vision, Reflection, and Desire in Western Painting David Summers, 2015-12-01 Spanning more than 2 500 years in the history of art Vision Reflection and Desire in Western Painting demonstrates how the rise and diffusion of the science of optics in ancient Greece and the Mediterranean world correlated to pictorial illusion in the development of Western painting from Hellenistic Greece to the present Using examples from the late Middle Ages and the Renaissance David Summers argues that scene painting architectural backdrops and shadow painting in which forms are modeled or shown as if in relation to a source of light not only evolved in close association with geometric optics toward the end of the fifth century B C E but also contributed substantially to the foundations of the new science The spread of understanding of how light is transmitted reflected and refracted is evident in the works of artists such as Brunelleschi van Eyck Alberti and Leonardo The interplay between optics and painting that influenced the course of Western art Summers says persisted as a framework for the realism of Caravaggio Rembrandt and Goya and continues today in modern photography and film
