Reflection Through Interaction Judith Watson Moray House Institute of Education, 2019-06-19 First Published in 1996 Teaching approaches for pupils with learning difficulties have often emphasized the presentation and repetition of easily manageable tasks rather than exploration learning through mistakes and reflection However there is encouraging evidence that such pupils may be helped to develop effective learning approaches with marked improvements in their academic performance and self concept The importance of the teacher s role in facilitating pupils reflective activity cannot be overstated This book locates reflective experiences within classroom interaction and discusses a variety of ways in which teachers can foster reflection These include their classroom talk challenging activities and the creation of an ethos where expectations are high and pupils thinking and self awareness are shown to be valued Most but not all of the classroom research reported here was conducted in special schools for pupils with moderate learning difficulties but the findings have implications for teachers of a wide range of pupils in both special and ordinary schools The hope is that they will be stimulated to incorporate some of the ideas in this book into their own practice

Interaction in Action Dave Hewett, Melanie Nind, 2013-10-28 First Published in 1998 The authors aim in editing Interaction in Action is to follow up on the thinking and practical guidance contained in their previous work on Intensive Interaction They hope to illustrate that Intensive Interaction is not just something that goes on in hospital schools Here we see the approach used not only by teachers but also by speech therapists occupational therapists social workers psychologists and parents We see the approach used in people s homes as well as in education and day centres The contributors have been asked to share their insights the way they think about Intensive Interaction as well as the way that they do it This means that the chapters contain both reflective analysis and vivid description The contributions illustrate how Intensive Interaction has grown and developed as an educational approach and as a way of being with people and they illustrate the impact on all those involved

Communication in Emergency Medicine Maria E. Moreira, Andrew French, 2019-07-08 Widely varying patient needs a wide provider mix significant power differentials and a heightened emotional state all contribute to barriers in communication in the medical field and all of these elements are magnified in an emergency department Communication in Emergency Medicine highlights key challenges to effective communication in Emergency Medicine that may be experienced by healthcare providers students nurses and even hospital administrators The text addresses these pitfalls by demonstrating how a mix of foundational communication techniques and leadership skills can be used to successfully overcome barriers in information exchange highlighted by real life clinical scenarios with an emphasis on avoidable pitfalls Chapters explore principles of communication patient and family interactions and communications within and outside of the healthcare system rounding off with a number of case studies The approach of utilizing the environment of an emergency department with high

Interactions and Social Learning Kristiina Kumpulainen, David Wray, 2003-12-16 Today s classroom presents a wealth of opportunities for social interaction amongst pupils leading to increased interest in teachers and researchers into the social nature of learning While classroom interaction can be a valuable tool for learning it does not necessarily lead to useful learning experiences Through case studies this book highlights the use of new analytical methodologies for studying the content and patterns of children s interactions and how these contribute to their construction of knowledge Classroom Interaction and Social Learning will be of interest to students and in service teachers and researchers concerned with classroom discourse and learning Reflection-in-Motion Jaclyn Fiscus-Cannaday, 2025-05-23 Reflection in Motion considers how reflective practice is embedded in daily course happenings centering the experiences of students and teachers in Minority Serving Institutions to amplify underrepresented viewpoints about how reflection works in the writing classroom Jaclyn Fiscus Cannaday examines how its availability is subject to teacher student power dynamics the literacies welcomed or not in the class the past and present pedagogies that students are engaging with and attending to and the interactions among humans materials and emotions within the rhetorical context She adopts an intersectional feminist perspective for an inclusive view of how practitioners name identify and practice reflection in the everyday moments of writing classrooms Fiscus Cannaday invokes a Black feminist qualitative research method that Venus Evans Winters calls a mosaic When researchers collect both traditional and nontraditional texts to create a full view of students and teachers interviews at three institutions a Hispanic Serving Institution a Historically Black College and University and an Asian American Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institution she finds that practitioners often build definitions from past experiences with reflection and then use those definitions as terministic screens to decide if an activity can be named identified and practiced as reflection These definitions hold different rhetorical effects reflection for introspection reflection for learning reflection for mindfulness and reflection for awareness Reflection is used for these different rhetorical effects but because classrooms so often focus on the Westernized view and its emphasis on growth reflection has the underused and undertheorized potential rhetorical effect of helping students investigate their identities and positionalities acknowledge deep rooted ideologies and consider new perspectives so they can better work across difference Reflection in Motion will inspire teachers and writing program administrators to listen to how students define and practice reflection and why thus making room for more capacious definitions of reflection and student centered practices of what reflection can do and be
