Refugees Past And Present:

The Making of a Refugee Tasoulla Hadjiyanni, 2002-03-30 Through an examination of interviews provided by 100 children of refugees in Cyprus born after their family's displacement Hadjiyanni illustrates the formation of a refugee consciousness an identity adopted by many children who never experienced the actual displacement of their family Focusing on the process by which a child born into a refugee family develops a refugee identity the book identifies nine dimensions that inform this consciousness Establishing the family as the primary transmitter of the refugee identity and the child as its constructor the author points to the power of homeplace in forming and supporting such an identity The book challenges the notion that refugee consciousness is a separate identity and a crisis by reinterpreting it as a resistance to adversity Shedding new light on what it means to be a refugee this work is a welcome addition to the field Beginning with a discussion of the meaning of the term refugee and how it has been adopted by the children of some refugees in Cyprus the author moves to an examination of the meaning of past and present to the formation of a refugee consciousness She then looks to the causes of such identity formation focusing on the transference of identity from parent to child and the effects of past loss on children who have not actually experienced displacement Housing issues are also examined as a contributing factor as refugee housing is typically distinct and constrained compared to housing for native citizens of a community The author concludes her work with a discussion of the implications of the Cyprus example for both the future and for general refugee studies

NATO - Past, Present And Future Edmond Nawrotzky-Török, 2002-01-31 Inhaltsangabe Abstract

When talking about integration one must think first of all about the problems such an integration means Many Romanians nowadays look at the integration into the European and Euro Atlantic structures only as a means of better living standards But very few Romanians might be willing to pay the price for the integration Nobody in Romania seems to know exactly the direction we are heading to But there must certainly be changes of the people s mentality if we want to achieve something at all Yet this problem does not concern Romanians alone The West generally regards Romania as a source of crime and at least for the moment does not even want to talk to Romania about our integration into the European Union although the negotiations have been started with all potential candidates at the same time Recently when about 500 gypsies created problems in Austria the country asked Hungary and the Czech Republic to introduce the visa system for Romanian citizens

They obviously wanted the Romanians to be even more humiliated than they already were lining up also at Hungary's and the Czech Republic's embassies in order to be able to travel to those countries. Minister Andrei Plesu, the Romanian Foreign Affairs Minister, said: If 500 gypsies are able to destabilise Austria, they are either first-hand merchandise or Austria is a little bit frail. On the other hand, one cannot deny that Romanian citizens keep causing trouble to western European countries. But the problem is that dubious people manage somehow to get visas while honest people are denied the basic right of travelling to foreign countries only because a few of their fellow citizens are being considered troublemakers. If no visas were required, only a small negligible margin of the Romanian citizens travelling abroad would be denied the permission to travel to western European countries again. Then there is the problem of culture. If you ask a Romanian citizen about the capital of a western European state, it is less possible that he will not know it than if you asked a western European about Romania's capital. For instance, many Frenchmen are convinced that Budapest is Romania's capital. A French band performing in Bucharest was warmly welcomed and acclaimed until its members shouted: I love you Budapest. Of course, the fact that western Europeans do not know eastern European capitals does not mean that people in western Europe are not civilised. Romania

The Refugee Convention at Fifty Joanne van Selm, 2003-01-01 The year 2001 marked the fiftieth anniversary of the Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees. The Refugee Convention at Fifty is a commemorative volume, but it is one that points toward a future that will see a continued need for refugee protection. The volume performs a much-needed task for the current era; it carefully examines this key legal text which impacts not only the law but also the politics and sociology of forced migration. Joanne van Selm and her coeditors have collected essays by scholars from a wide range of disciplines, NGO staff members, international organization professionals, and national-level policy makers who discuss the impact of this legal document on forced migrants, the states they migrate from and to, and the societies they join and leave behind. Sub-themes covered include the potential for solidarity between states in ensuring that legal and political commitments are upheld, regional approaches to refugee protection and displacement, and the human and social consequences of forced migration for those covered by or excluded from refugee protection. The geographic and disciplinary spread of the book is unparalleled, and The Refugee Convention at Fifty sets the standard for the contentious and critical study of refugees, the high standards for scholarship and innovative thinking that will serve as precedent for future policy making and implementation in the field.

supposedly humanitarian extended encampment Drawing on the anti colonial theorists such as Fanon Mbembe and Nyerere etc it argues for an Africa without borders or encampment The study is interdisciplinary encompassing forced migration refugee studies camp studies decolonial studies and African studies More broadly it seeks to contribute to the literature on the politics of asylum in Africa through a critical examination of the colonial origins and the practice of encampment in Kenya

Psychosocial Wellness of Refugees Frederick L. Ahearn, 2000 In recent years scholars in the fields of refugee studies and forced migration have extended their areas of interest and research into the phenomenon of displacement human response to it and ways to intervene to assist those affected increasingly focusing on the emotional and social impact of displacement on refugees and their adjustment to the traumatic experiences In the process the positive concept of psychosocial wellness was developed as discussed in this volume In it noted scholars address the strengths and limitations of their investigations citing examples from their work with refugees from Afghanistan Cambodia Vietnam Palestine Cuba Nicaragua Haiti Eastern Europe Bosnia and Chile The authors discuss how they define psychosocial wellness as well as the issues of sample selection measurement reliability and validity refugee narratives and voices and the ability to generalize findings and apply these to other populations The key question that has guided many of these investigations and underlies the premise of this book is what happens to an ordinary person who has experienced an extraordinary event This volume also highlights the fact that those involved in such research must also deal with their own emotional responses as they hear victims tell of killing torture humiliation and dispossession The volume will therefore appeal to practitioners of psychology psychiatry social work nursing and anthropology However its breadth and the evaluation of the strengths and disadvantages of both qualitative and quantitative methods also make it an excellent text for students The Internally Displaced Person in International Law Romola Adeola, 2020-10-30 While the plight of persons displaced within the borders of states has emerged as a global concern not much attention has been given to this specific category of persons in international legal scholarship Unlike refugees internally displaced persons remain within the states in which they are displaced Current statistics indicate that there are more people displaced within state borders than persons displaced outside states Romola Adeola examines the protection of the internally displaced person under international law considering existing legal regimes at various levels of governance and institutional mechanisms for internally displaced persons
