Development Phillip B. Roös,2020-09-15 In this book the author tests a regenerative adaptive pattern language theory towards investigating the possibilities of a holistic integrated design and planning method for sustainable development that incorporates the principles of regenerative design as well as an adaptive pattern language that re-establishes our wholeness with nature and considers the vulnerabilities of a changing landscape The book examines an integral approach to contemporary theories of planning and design that explores the human nature relationship patterns in social and spatial interconnections between people and their natural environments The interconnectedness of human and natural systems is used to scaffold possible solutions to address key environmental and sustainability issues that specifically address the need for patterns of behaviour that acknowledge the duality of man and nature In 12 chapters the book presents a holistic regenerative adaptive pattern language that encapsulates how communities can better appreciate landscape change under future climate effects and acknowledges the importance to adapt to patterns of change of place and the environment and therefore inform the communities responses for sustainable development The application of the regenerative adaptive pattern language was tested along the Great Ocean Road region of the Victorian coast in Australia The concluding chapters argues that for human settlements and cities to be resilient and sustainable we must understand the interconnected patterns of human built environments and natural systems and how we function in a social spatial dimension with these The book is intended for practitioners and academic scholars with interest in sustainable development regenerative design pattern languages biophilia settlement planning and climate change adaptation Regenerative Landscapes: Designing the

reveal the theoretical and methodological assumptions inherent when planners choose one approach over the other Ndubisi concludes that no one approach can by itself adequately address the whole spectrum of ecological planning issues For this reason he offers guidance as to when it may be appropriate for landscape architects and planners to emphasize one approach rather than another
