Rexford Tugwell And The New Deal:

The Diary of Rexford G. Tugwell Rexford Guy Tugwell, 1992-05-30 Rexford G Tugwell's diary of the New Deal era is one of the most important first hand primary accounts of the New Deal available. One of FDR's most intimate advisors Tugwell provides an open account of what went on in the New Deal particularly in the early days when programs to address the Great Depression were being devised. The diary talks openly about how programs were devised who was involved and how FDR reacted. It is very specific about such New Deal Programs as the NRA AAA and the different relief programs including CWA PWA the Resettlement Administration and CCC. The diary also discusses individuals such as FDR Henry Wallace Hugh Johnson Donald Richberg Chester Davis Louis Brandeis Felix Frankfurter and fellow Brain Trusters Raymond Moley and Adolf Berle. The diary also provides insight into how Tugwell viewed himself and whether or not he agreed with the individuals assigned to run the New Deal programs. One of the most used sources at the FDR Library this diary gives a rare glimpse of FDR and how he treated his intimate advisers. Rexford Tugwell and the New Deal Bernard Sternsher, 1964. An expansion of the author's thesis issued in microfilm form in 1957 under title Rexford Guy Tugwell and the New Deal. The works and papers of Rexford Guy Tugwell p 413 424. Bibliographical references included in Notes p 425 498. The New Deal's Forest Army Benjamin F. Alexander, 2018-02. How the Civilian Conservation Corps constructed rejuvenated and protected American forests and parks at the height of the Great Depression. Propelled by the unprecedented poverty of the Great Depression President Franklin D Roosevelt established an array of massive public works programs designed to provide direct relief to America's poor and unemployed. The New Deal's most tangible legacy may be the Civilian Conservation Corps's network of parks national forests scenic roadways and picnic shelters that still mark the country's landscape. CCC enrollees most of them unmarried young men lived in camps run by the Army and worked hard for wages most of which they had to send home to their families to preserve America's natural treasures. In The New Deal's Forest Army Benjamin F Alexander chronicles how the corps came about the process applicants went through to get in and what jobs they actually did. He also explains how the camps and the work sites were run how enrollees spent their leisure time and how World War II brought the CCC to its end. Connecting the story of the CCC with the Roosevelt administration's larger initiatives Alexander describes how FDR's policies constituted a mixed blessing for African Americans who even while singled out for harsh treatment benefited enough from the New Deal to become an increasingly strong part of the electorate behind the Democratic Party. The CCC was the only large scale employment program whose existence FDR foreshadowed in speeches during the 1932 campaign and the dearest to his heart throughout the decade that it lasted. Alexander reveals how the work itself left a lasting imprint on the country's terrain as the enrollees planted trees fought forest fires landscaped public parks restored historic battlegrounds and constructed dams and terraces to prevent floods. A uniquely detailed exploration of life in the CCC. The New Deal's Forest Army compellingly demonstrates how one New Deal program changed America and gave birth to both contemporary forestry and the modern environmental movement Columbus of the New Deal Katelin Elizabeth Olson, 2009

This thesis examines the agrarian economics beliefs of Rexford G Tugwell prior to entering public service in order to understand the impetus for establishing the Resettlement Administration under President Franklin D Roosevelt's New Deal program. The work begins with an examination of the historical themes and developments of the late 19th and early 20th centuries that influenced Tugwell and the Roosevelt Administration followed by Tugwell's pre-administration writings. Four influential themes from this professional period would later guide his policies as leader of the Resettlement Administration. The thesis concludes with a discussion of the agency's goals, obstacles, and policies between 1935 and 1936 and how they related to two of its flagship programs: Greenbelt MD and the Chopawamsic Recreation Demonstration Project. This work seeks to expose the history of an important but relatively obscure New Deal agency and interpret Rexford Tugwell's role in its creation and contribute to a broader discussion about the evolution of American land use patterns in America.

Nothing to Fear Adam Cohen, 2009-01-08 A fascinating account of an extraordinary moment in the life of the United States. The New York Times: With the world currently in the grips of a financial crisis unlike anything since the Great Depression, Nothing to Fear could not be timelier. This acclaimed work of history brings to life Franklin Roosevelt's first hundred days in office when he and his inner circle launched the New Deal, forever reinventing the role of the federal government. As Cohen reveals, five fiercely intelligent, often clashing personalities presided over this transformation and pushed the president to embrace a bold solution. Nothing to Fear is the definitive portrait of the men and women who engineered the nation's recovery from the worst economic crisis in American history. Class Struggle and the New Deal Rhonda F. Levine, 1988 In this reassessment of New Deal policymaking, Rhonda Levine argues that the major constraints upon and catalysts for FDR's policies were rooted in class conflict. Countering neo-Marxist and state-centred theories which focus on administrative and bureaucratic structures, she contends that too little attention has been paid to the effect of class struggle. Rexford G. Tugwell Michael Namorato, 1988-07-22 As a member of Roosevelt's brain trust, chairman of New York City's Planning Commission, and governor of Puerto Rico, Rexford G Tugwell was a public figure frequently stereotyped by historians who saw in him what they wanted to see. Namorato's clear and thorough examination of Tugwell's life is the first complete biography of this prominent political figure. The volume opens with an investigation into Tugwell's early years and then discusses his experiences during World War I, the years from 1920 to 1932 which Tugwell spent as an economics professor at Columbia University, Tugwell's brain trust role and his New Deal years from 1932 to 1936. The author also examines Tugwell's term as chairman of the NYCPC and as governor of Puerto Rico from 1937 through 1946. Namorato's portrayal provides a fresh and balanced view of this unique statesman. The Divided Mind of American Liberalism James R. Hurtgen, 2002-01-01 The Divided Mind of American Liberalism reveals the crisis at the heart of modern American liberalism. James Hurtgen's historical narrative traces the liberal movement through three periods of reform: the progressive movement, the New Deal and the Great Society Drawing on the views of political activists presidents and theorists the work examines the tensions that resulted in the ideological disunion based on deep and lasting divisions over the desirability of centralized political power of the communitarian decentralists and individualist modernist wings of the liberal movement It documents how a modernist willingness to accept properly reformed nationally exercised power held sway through much of the century only to be supplanted in the sixties and early seventies by decentralists champions of local government as the ideal political unit This superb study demonstrates the central role liberalism has played in modern American political development and lays bare a liberal movement thrown into crisis by competing theories of social order The Physical City Neil L.

Shumsky,2013-12-16 First Published in 1996 Part of a series that brings together more than 200 scholarly articles pertaining to the history and development of urban life in the United States during the past two centuries The physical development of cities and their infrastructure is considered in Volume 2 which focuses on city planning and its origins in the Rural Cemetery Movement the City Beautiful Movement and the role of business in advocating more rational and efficient urban places Volume 2 also contains articles about essential aspects of the urban infra structure and the provision of basic services essential for urban survival water sewer and transportation systems The Great Depression Michael A. Bernstein,1987 This 1988 book focusses on why the American economy failed to recover from the downturn of 1929 33
