Jordan, George M. Lubick, 2011-07-26 Making Nature Whole is a seminal volume that presents an in depth history of the field of ecological restoration as it has developed in the United States over the last three decades The authors draw from both published and unpublished sources including archival materials and oral histories from early practitioners to explore the development of the field and its importance to environmental management as well as to the larger environmental movement and our understanding of the world Considering antecedents as varied as monastic gardens the Scientific Revolution and the emerging nature awareness of nineteenth century Romantics and Transcendentalists Jordan and Lubick offer unique insight into the field s philosophical and theoretical underpinnings They examine specifically the more recent history including the story of those who first attempted to recreate natural ecosystems early in the 20th century as well as those who over the past few decades have realized the value of this approach not only as a critical element in conservation but also as a context for negotiating the ever changing relationship between humans and the natural environment Making Nature Whole is a landmark contribution providing context and history regarding a distinctive form of land management and giving readers a fascinating overview of the development of the field It is essential reading for anyone interested in understanding where ecological restoration came from or where it might be going Niagara Historical Society ,1909     Publications Niagara Historical Society,1905     Conservation Bulletin ,1940     Appendix to the Assembly Journal Wisconsin,1916     Opinions and Decisions of the Railroad Commission Railroad Commission of Wisconsin,1914     Opinions and Decisions of the Railroad Commission of the State of Wisconsin Railroad Commission of Wisconsin,1914     Public Documents of the State of Wisconsin Wisconsin,1916     Public Documents of the State of Wisconsin ,1916
