We shall not be moved Brian Marren, 2016-05-01 The city of Liverpool had frequently been prone to industrial unrest for most of its recent history but it was the dawn of Thatcher and the sanctioning of neoliberal economic strategies which made Liverpool a nucleus of resistance against the encroaching tide of right wing politics and sweeping de industrialisation This critique explores six case studies which will illustrate how elements of a highly politicised local working class fought against the rapid rise in forced redundancies and industrial closures Some of their responses included strikes factory occupations the organisation and politicisation of the unemployed consent to radical left wing municipal politics as well as tacit endorsement a period of violent civil unrest This critique concludes that in the range intensity and use of innovative tactics deployed during these conflicts Liverpool was distinctive Social Classes and Social Relations in Britain 1850-1914 Alastair J. Reid, 1995-09-28 The analysis of social classes and social relations in the second half of the nineteenth century has caused major debates among social historians In this book first published in 1995 Alastair Reid provides a critical summary of the different approaches to the subject giving an account of how interpretations have developed since the 1960s and highlighting the strengths and weaknesses of each approach The author explains how the influence of social sciences in the 1960s led scholars to emphasise the rise to power of the bourgeoisie and the increasing subordination of the industrial working class Recently more detailed research has led to a return to the older historical emphasis on the persistence of aristocratic power the increasing independence of the working classes and the centrality of voluntary agreement in a social order based on consent The conclusion suggests new ways in which the subject might be approached A select bibliography allows the reader to pursue the topic in more detail
