by Steven J Dick and Keith L Cowing Contains the record of the NASA Administrator s Symposium September 26 29 2004 Naval Postgraduate School Monterey California Offers insights on why we explore how to balance risk and exploration how different groups define and perceive risk differently and the importance of exploration to a creative society Risk and Exploration: Earth, Sea and Stars ,2005 A Risk Reduction Strategy for Human Exploration of Space Board on Health Sciences Policy,Space Studies Board,Aeronautics and Space Engineering Board,Institute of Medicine,2006-03-16 Extending the spatial and temporal boundaries of human space flight is an important goal for the nation and for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration NASA However human space flight remains an endeavor with substantial risks and these risks must be identified managed and mitigated appropriately to achieve the nation s goals in space The Biastronautics Roadmap BR is the result of extensive commendable efforts on the part of NASA to prioritize research efforts to meet these challenges In 2003 NASA asked the Institute of Medicine IOM in collaboration with the Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences of the National Academies to conduct a review of the BR Specifically NASA asked the committee to 1 conduct a comprehensive assessment and report of the strengths and weaknesses of the content and processes of the Biastronautics Roadmap as applied to the missions described in the President s exploration initiative and 2 identify the unique challenges for accomplishing its goals and objectives In September 2004 the committee released its preliminary report to NASA entitled Preliminary Considerations Regarding NASA s Biastronautics Critical Path Roadmap That document presented the committee s preliminary conclusions about the strengths and weaknesses of the April 2004 version of the BR This report A Risk Reductions Strategy for Human Exploration of Space builds on those preliminary conclusions and provides recommendations to NASA about how to address the issues identified by the committee
