North American Social Report A Comparative Study Of The Quality V:

North American Social Report Alex C. Michalos, 2012-12-06 For readers who intend to read this volume without reading the first some introductory remarks are in order about the scope of the work and the strategy used in all five volumes to measure the quality of life In the first chapter of Volume I I reviewed the relevant recent literature on social indicators and social reporting and explained all the general difficulties involved in such work It would be redundant to repeat that discussion here but there are some fundamental points that are worth mentioning Readers who find this account too brief should consult the longer discussion The basic question that will be answered in this work is this Is there a difference in the quality of life in Canada and the United States of America and if so in which country is it better Alternatively one could put the question thus If one individual were randomly selected out of Canada and another out of the United States would there be important qualitative differences and if so which one would probably be better one To simplify matters I often use the terms Canadian and American as abbreviations for a randomly selected resident of Canada or the United States respectively

Development of Quality of Life Theory and Its Instruments Alex C. Michalos, 2017-06-14 The focus of this volume is on the further development of the Quality of Life Theory and the means to measure the concept The volume summarizes Michalos fundamental assumptions about the nature of quality of life or human well being and explains in detail the two variable theory of the quality of life It gives an update of the journal Social Indicators Research after forty years an explanation of the role of community indicators in connecting communities and a critical review of the much publicized Stiglitz Sen and Fitoussi report It deals with the multiple discrepancies theory MDT the empirical theory designed to provide the foundation of the pragmatic theory of value Other concepts discussed in this volume are the stability sensitivity and other different features of measures of domain and life satisfaction and happiness measures of arts related activities and beliefs measures of knowledge attitudes and behaviour concerning sustainable development and the role of quality of life in sustainable development research The volume concludes with discussions on connections between social indicators and communities aspects of community quality of life in Prince George British Columbia and Jasper Alberta and British Columbians expectations and attitudes going into the third millennium

The Illusion of Difference Jeffrey G. Reitz, Raymond Breton, C.D. Howe Institute, 1994. In distinguishing themselves from Americans, Canadians have long used the language of metaphor to describe their society as a mosaic and the United States as a melting pot. To undertake this difficult challenge of comparing the cultural myths and realities of Canada and the United States, the C.D. Howe Institute drew on the expertise of two of Canada's most esteemed sociologists, Jeffrey G. Reitz and Raymond Breton, both of whom are professors of sociology at the University of Toronto. Their study, the result of an exhaustive review of the available public opinion data, helps bring a picture of Canadians and Americans into clearer focus. Topics covered are Canadian beliefs about the mosaic and the melting pot, attitudes toward the retention of minority cultures, the extent of cultural retention and prejudice and discrimination.
