General Register Office, 1888 Quaternary of South-West England S. Campbell, C.O. Hunt, James D. Scourse, D.H. Keen, N. Stephens, 2012-12-06 STRUCTURE OF THE VOLUME AND TERMINOLOGY USED This book contains scientific descriptions of 63 localities Figure A of at least national importance for Quaternary geology geomorphology and environmental change in South West England These sites were selected by the Geological Conservation Review and are accordingly designated GCR sites Chapter 1 provides an introduction to the Quaternary Chapter 2 synthesizes the

geomorphological development and Quaternary history of the region and outlines the principles involved in site selection The individual GCR site descriptions form the core of the book In the following chapters sites are arranged and described in broad geographic areas and by research topic This is necessitated by the widely disparate nature of the field evidence in South West England sites demonstrating the full range of Quaternary and geomorphological features are not evenly and conveniently dispersed throughout the region and some areas have significant gaps Neither do the individual chapters contain sites that necessarily equate with particular site selection networks Rather the chosen chapter headings provide the least repetitive means of describing the sites and background material Where possible a chronological approach from oldest to youngest has been used to describe sites within a given chapter Again this approach is not always possible and a group of sites may show variations on landform or Stratigraphic evidence broadly within one major time interval or chronostratigraphic stage inevitably there are many overlaps New Light on the Neolithic of Northern England Gill Hey, Paul Frodsham, 2021-01-13 These papers highlight recent archaeological work in Northern England in the commercial academic and community archaeology sectors which have fundamentally changed our perspective on the Neolithic of the area Much of this was new work and much is still not published has been overlooked in the national discourse The papers cover a wide geographical area from Lancashire north into the Scottish Lowlands recognising the irrelevance of the England Scotland Border They also take a broad chronological sweep from the Mesolithic Neolithic transition to the introduction of Beakers into the area The key themes are the nature of transition the need for a much improved chronological framework regional variation linked to landscape character links within northern England and with distant places the implications of new dating for our understanding the axe trade the changing nature of settlement and agriculture the character early Neolithic enclosures the need to integrate rock art into wider discourse The Regional Imperative Urrall A.

Wannop, 2014-02-04 Based on cases and interviews in Britain Europe and the United States this book explains the recurrence of regional planning and of initiatives in regional governance in a wide range of advanced industrial countries Providing an analysis of the nature of regional planning and governance the book traces the development of regional planning and the institutions associated with it It also looks at the way that regions have been changing their form under pressure from economic and political developments and examines how regional planning and governance has responded comparing experience in the UK the rest of Europe and the US In concluding that regionalism is an imperative feature of politics in most countries associated with almost any of the variety of forms of governance the author offers a major appraisal of the significance of regional planning in an international context Security and Defence in South-West England Before 1800

Robert Higham, 1987 From Roman times to the eighteenth century the South West of England was an example of the importance of matters of security and defence to a local society easily threatened by external and internal conflicts and tensions These studies provide a series of vignettes illustrating perennial and enduring problems in the history
