Means of Exchange Dagfinn Skre,2008-12-31 This second volume based on the excavations of the Viking town Kaupang 2000 2003 presents find types used in economic transactions coins hacksilver ingots weights and balances Changes in type and volume of economic transactions at Kaupang and in Scandinavia are discussed and the economic mentality of Viking crafts and tradesmen is explored Earlier the study of Viking silver currency was based mainly on hoards containing coins and hacksilver In this volume the combined study of the find types mentioned as well as the sophisticated chronology of settlements finds from sites like Kaupang gives a completely new insight into economy and exchange In the early 9th century silver and goods seem to have come to Kaupang mainly from the Carolingian world Silver weighed with locally produced lead weights was used as currency on a limited scale The old e unit was easily convertible to Carolingian units After the mid 9th century this early system was altered The increased availability of silver caused by the import of Islamic coins as well as the introduction in most of Scandinavia in the 860s 870s of standardized weights of probable Islamic origin paved the way from then on for an increasing use of silver as payment These studies demonstrate that sites like Kaupang led the way in economic development in Scandinavia The urban environment promoted an economic mentality which contributed significantly to the fundamental transformation of Scandinavian culture and society which culminated in the region s integration in Christian Europe in the High Middle Ages

Roman and Medieval Exeter and their Hinterlands Stephen Rippon, Neil Holbrook, 2021-03-23 This first volume presenting research carried out through the Exeter A Place in Time project provides a synthesis of the development of Exeter within its local regional national and international hinterlands Exeter began life in c AD 55 as one of the most important legionary bases within early Roman Britain and for two brief periods in the early and late 60s AD Exeter was a critical centre of Roman power within the new province When the legion moved to Wales the fortress was converted into the civitas capital for the Dumnonii Its development as a town was however relatively slow reflecting the gradual pace at which the region as a whole adapted to being part of the Roman world The only evidence we have for occupation within Exeter between the 5th and 8th centuries is for a church in what was later to become the Cathedral Close In the late 9th century however Exeter became a defended burh and this was followed by the revival of urban life Exeter s wealth was in part derived from its central role in the south west s tin industry and by the late 10th century Exeter was the fifth most productive mint in England Exeter s importance continued to grow as it became an episcopal and royal centre and excavations within Exeter have revealed important material culture assemblages that reflect its role as an international port

The Archaeology of Seafaring in Ancient South Asia Himanshu Prabha Ray, 2003-08-14 Prior to European expansion communities of the Indian subcontinent had a strong maritime orientation In this new archaeological study Himanshu Prabha Ray explores seafaring activity religious travel and political economy in this ancient period By using archaeological data from the Red Sea to the Indonesian archipelago she reveals how the early history of peninsular South Asia is interconnected with that of its Asian and Mediterranean partners in the Indian Ocean Region The book departs from traditional studies focusing on the communities maritime history rather than agrarian expansion and the emergence of the state Rather than being a prime mover in social economic and religious change the state is viewed as just one participant in a complex interplay of social actors including merchants guilds boat builders sailors pilgrims religious clergy and craft producers A study that will be welcomed by students of Archaeology and Ancient History particularly those interested in South Asian Studies

Archaeological Chemistry A Mark Pollard, Carl Heron, 2015-11-09 The application of chemistry within archaeology is an important and fascinating area It allows the archaeologist to answer such questions as what is this artefact made of where did it come from and how has it been changed through burial in the ground providing pointers to the earliest history of mankind Archaeological Chemistry begins with a brief description of the goals and history of archaeological science and the place of chemistry within it It sets out the most widely used analytical techniques in archaeology and compares them in the light of relevant applications The book includes an analysis of several specific archaeological investigations in which chemistry has been employed in tracing the origins of or in preserving artefacts The choice of these investigations conforms to themes based on analytical techniques and includes chapters on obsidian ceramics glass metals and resins Finally it suggests a future role for chemical and biochemical applications in archaeology Archaeological Chemistry enables scientists to tackle the fundamental issues of chemical change in the archaeological materials in order to advance the study of the past It will prove an essential companion to students in archaeological science and chemistry field and museum archaeologists and all those involved in conserving human artefacts
