The correlation between the socio-political activity of nurse educators and their knowledge of health policy

Accepted 19th April, 2013

ABSTRACT

Nurse educators who are competent regarding socio-political issues and who have good societal networks are confident in engaging in the development of education and behave as agents of change. However, research in this field is scarce. This study aims to describe the socio-political activity of nurse educators and their knowledge regarding health policy and education policy from the point of view of the nurse educators themselves, as well as from the point of view of nursing education administrators. The data were collected by a structured Nursing Teachers' Social Activity (NTSA) questionnaire via e-mail from nursing teachers (N=765) and the educational administrators of nursing education programmes (N=45). The questionnaire included five background factors and eight items regarding social activities of nursing teachers. The response rate was 46% (n=342) among nursing teachers and 38% (n=17) among education administrators. The data were analysed using descriptive statistics. The results showed that the nursing teachers are quite active in society activities even though almost half of them evaluated themselves as quite inactive. Nursing teachers often publish professional papers and reports but seldom articles in international peer-reviewed scientific journals. Teachers participate mostly in local working groups. Nursing education administrators evaluated the social activity of nursing teachers as quite good. Although nursing teachers' knowledge about health policy was quite good by their own opinion, they felt they must update and improve their knowledge.

INTRODUCTION

The challenge of building strong, responsive, and sustainable healthcare systems is faced by most nations in the world. Globally, healthcare systems struggle against gaps and inequities in healthcare due to greater complexities of healthcare needs, rising costs, and a shortage of healthcare personnel (European Commission, 2009). Moreover, the ageing population, increasing healthcare needs and technological developments have changed both the objectives of health policy and the competence demanded of nursing staff and nursing education (WHO, 2009). Nurse educators should be visionaries, because they are in a central position to carry out nursing education in order to meet the future needs of society (Salminen et al., 2010). Nurse educators should also prepare future nurses to actively take part in socio-political discussions (Carnegie and Kiger, 2009). The socio-political activity of nurses and nurse educators impacts nursing practice on all levels, including research and education (Hall-Long, 2009).

Research on nurse educators' socio-political activity and their interaction, or engagement with society is scarce. These studies have focused on the characteristics of the
