

Biology Class - Lesson 1

Could plants survive without animals? Perhaps some could. But what would happen if there were no bees or butterflies to pollinate flowers? What about plants that depend on seed-eating animals to spread their seeds? Plants do benefit from animals.

Let's wrap up this section with a brief review of what goes on in a leaf. See if you can follow along with this paragraph, putting your finger on the appropriate words or arrows in the diagram as you read. Stop when you come to a comma or period and make sure your finger is in the right place before you continue.

The plant uses light, carbon dioxide, and water in a process called photosynthesis. This process results in the production of oxygen, water, and glucose (sugar). Some of the glucose is used by the plant as its own food. (This "feeding" process inside a plant cell is called "respiration.") For respiration, the plant needs some of its sugar, plus oxygen and water. It produces energy, plus carbon dioxide and waste.

Plants actually make more glucose than they need. The leftover glucose is packaged into starches or fats and is stored in the roots, seeds and fruits.

And now for something completely different...

HOW CELLS DIVIDE

As a plant grows, it must increase the number of cells it has.

To make more cells, plants use a process called mitosis. Mitosis is both very simple and very complex. It is simple because it just means that a cell splits in half, creating two cells. That's it. The word "mitosis" just means splitting in half. However, in order to do this, the cell must go through some very complicated procedures.

First, the nucleus must prepare. It takes up to 16 hours to do this, and each new cell must have a complete copy of the DNA instructions. Also, each new cell will need a full set of organelles. Let's say a cell needs 10 mitochondria to survive. That means that before it is ready to split in half, the "parent" cell needs to have 20 mitochondria, 10 for each new "daughter" cell. (Sorry, there are no "son" cells, only "daughter" cells!) Each new cell will also need ribosomes, Golgi bodies, lysosomes and all the other organelles. So a cell has to keep busy making new organelles all the time.

When the cell has enough organelles to make two cells, the division process starts. Scientists have lots of complicated names for all these steps, but we're going to use ordinary words for our explanation. If you want to know the complicated words, you can look them up on the Internet, just use the key word "mitosis."

Here's how the nucleus divides:

- 1) The DNA in the nucleus duplicates, making two complete copies. Organelles called centrioles go to the opposite sides of the nucleus and get ready to start pulling it apart.
