Gettmann,2010-06-10 This is a study of the rise and activity of the London publishing house which started in 1829 as Bentley and Colburn and was finally absorbed by Macmillan in 1898 Professor Gettmann has worked from the surviving papers of the firm and it is probable that he has here given more detail about the aims methods and successes of an English publisher of the time than can be found anywhere else Since there is constant reference from the activities of Bentley to that of his contemporaries it is also a microcosm of English authorship and publishing from the time of Scott to that of Meredith one of the great period of English publishing enterprise It discusses movements of taste and cycles of popular reading and illustrates the relationship between publisher and author It also deals with authors contracts and rewards and in short deals with every aspect of English publishing in an important period

The Plain and Noble Garb of Truth Eileen K.

Cheng,2008 American historians of the early national period argues Eileen Ka May Cheng grappled with objectivity professionalism and other modern issues to a greater degree than their successors in later generations acknowledge Her extensive readings of antebellum historians show that by the 1820s a small but influential group of practitioners had begun to develop many of the doctrines and concerns that undergird contemporary historical practice The Plain and Noble Garb of Truth challenges the entrenched notion that America s first generations of historians were romantics or propagandists for a struggling young nation Cheng engages with the works of well known early national historians like George Bancroft William Prescott and David Ramsay such lesser known figures as Jared Sparks and Lorenzo Sabine and leading political and intellectual elites of the day including Francis Bowen and Charles Francis Adams She shows that their work which focused on the American Revolution was often nuanced and surprisingly sympathetic in its treatment of American Indians and loyalists She also demonstrates how the rise of the novel contributed to the emergence of history as an autonomous discipline arguing that paradoxically early national historians at once described truth in opposition to the novel and were influenced by the novel in their understanding of truth Modern historians should recognize that the discipline of history is itself a product of history says Cheng By taking seriously a group of too often dismissed historians she challenges contemporary historians to examine some ahistorical aspects of the way they understand their own discipline
