Settler Colonial Governance in Nineteenth-Century Victoria Leigh Boucher, Lynette Russell, 2015-04-29 This collection represents a serious re examination of existing work on the Aboriginal history of nineteenth century Victoria deploying the insights of postcolonial thought to wrench open the inner workings of territorial expropriation and its historically tenacious variability Colonial historians have frequently asserted that the management and control of Aboriginal people in colonial Victoria was historically exceptional by the end of the century colonies across mainland Australia looked to Victoria as a model for how to manage the problem of Aboriginal survival This collection carefully traces the emergence and enactment of this model in the years after colonial separation the idiosyncrasies of its application and the impact it had on Aboriginal lives It is no exaggeration to say that the work on colonial Victoria represented here is in the vanguard of what we might see as a new Australian colonial history This is a quite distinctive development shaped by the aftermath of the history wars within Australia and through engagement with the new imperial history of Britain and its empire It is characterised by an awareness of colonial Australia's positioning within broader imperial circuits through which key personnel ideas and practices flowed and also by local settler society's impact upon and entanglements with Aboriginal Australia The volume heralds a new spatially aware movement within Australian history writing Alan Lester This is a timely astutely assembled and well nuanced collection that combines theoretical sophistication with empirical solidity Theoretically it engages knowledgeably but not uncritically with a broad range of influences including postcolonialism the new imperial history settler colonial studies and critical Indigenous studies Empirically contributors have trawled an impressive array of archival sources both standard and relatively unknown bringing a fresh eye to bear on what we thought we knew but would now benefit from reconsidering Though the collection wears its politics openly it does so lightly and without jeopardising fidelity to its sources Patrick Wolfe

Settlers, War, and Empire in the Press Sam Hutchinson, 2017-11-09 This book explores how public commentary framed Australian involvement in the Waikato War 1863-64 the Sudan crisis 1885 and the South African War 1899-1902 a succession of conflicts that reverberated around the British Empire and which the newspaper press reported at length It reconstructs the ways these conflicts were understood and reflected in the colonial and British press and how commentators responded to the shifting circumstances that shaped the mood of their coverage Studying each conflict in turn the book explores the expressions of feeling that arose within and between the Australian colonies and Britain It argues that settler and imperial narratives required constant defending and maintaining This process led to tensions between Britain and the colonies and also to vivid displays of mutual affection The book examines how war narratives merged with ideas of territorial ownership and productivity racial anxieties self governance and foundational violence In doing so it draws out the rationales and emotions that both fortified and unsettled settler societies The imperial Commonwealth Wm. Matthew Kennedy, 2023-07-25 From the late 1800s to the early 1900s Australian settler colonists mobilised their unique settler experiences to develop their own vision of what empire was and could be Reinterpreting their histories and attempting to divine their futures with a much heavier concentration on racialized visions of humanity white Australian settlers came to believe that their whiteness as well as their Britishness qualified them for an equal voice in the running of Britain's imperial project Through asserting their case many soon claimed that as newly minted citizens of a progressive and exemplary Australian Commonwealth white settlers such as themselves were actually better suited to the modern task of empire Such a settler political cosmology with empire at its center ultimately led Australians to claim an empire of their own in the Pacific Islands complete with its own unique imperial governmentality

Double Vision Margaret Slocomb, 2022-12-28 Double Vision serves as a prequel to Among Australian Pioneers which highlighted the experience of Chinese indentured laborers on the northern frontier from 1848 to 1880 a time of intense conflict With this latest book historian Margaret Slocomb responds to a call for more regional histories of early contact relations so we can understand their complexity as well as the diversity of reactions and responses that followed The author observes that encounters at the margins of settlement between new societies seeking profits and traditional owners defending their land are bruising brutal affairs conducted beyond the reach of regular norms and conventions and contested within a framework of conflicting mutually incomprehensible and irreconcilable laws The Northern Districts of Wide Bay and Burnett on the tribal lands of the Kabi Kabi and Wakka Wakka nations represented that frontier from roughly 1845 until Queensland formed a separate colony in 1859 Dispossession was violent by its very nature but there was also accommodation and adaptation on one side and compassionate advocacy on the other Join the author as she seeks if not the full truth at least a unified understanding of our shared history and mutual recognition of its contested nature

Aboriginal Family and the State Sally Babidge, 2016-03-23 Aboriginal Family and the State examines the contemporary relations and history of Indigenous families in Australia specifically referencing issues of government control and recent official recognition of Aboriginal traditional owners Drawing on detailed empirical research it develops a discussion of the anthropological issues of kinship and relatedness within colonial and postcolonial contexts This volume explores the conditions affecting the formation of family among indigenous people in rural northern Australia as well as the contingencies of family in the legal and political context of contemporary indigenous claims to land With a rich discussion of the production practice and inscription of social relations this volume examines everyday expressions of family and events such as meetings and funerals demonstrating that kinship is formed and reformed through a complicated social practice of competing demands on identity

Engines of Influence Elizabeth Morrison, 2005 Engines of Influence is a fifty year history of Victoria's country newspapers beginning with James Harrison's Geelong Advertiser in 1840 and ending in December 1890 when 166 papers were being published in

122 country towns This significant book identifies all press sites and newspapers of the era whether long lasting or short lived and highlights the major part played by them in helping construct the machinery of government lay the foundations of party politics and foster a sense of rural Victorian identity The country press was an important agent of political change leading up to events such as the separation of the Port Phillip District from New South Wales in 1851 and the federation of the colony of Victoria with other British dependencies into a single nation at the end of the nineteenth century Engines of Influence shows how country newspapers also exercised cultural authority circulating ideas generated both within local communities and from the wider world Towards the end of the fifty years examined this rural press was becoming a close part of a unified political state linked through the metropolitan press and agencies to a technologically based global communications network
