Welsh,David P. Farrington,2009-11-04 The United Kingdom has more than 4 2 million public closed circuit television CCTV cameras one for every fourteen citizens Across the United States hundreds of video surveillance systems are being installed in town centers public transportation facilities and schools at a cost exceeding 100 million annually And now other Western countries have begun to experiment with CCTV to prevent crime in public places In light of this expansion and the associated public expenditure as well as pressing concerns about privacy rights there is an acute need for an evidence based approach to inform policy and practice Drawing on the highest quality research criminologists Brandon C Welsh and David P Farrington assess the effectiveness and social costs of not only CCTV but also of other important surveillance methods to prevent crime in public space such as improved street lighting security guards place managers and defensible space Importantly the book goes beyond the question of Does it work and examines the specific conditions and contexts under which these surveillance methods may have an effect on crime as well as the mechanisms that bring about a reduction in crime At a time when cities need cost effective methods to fight crime and the public gradually awakens to the burdens of sacrificing their privacy and civil rights for security Welsh and Farrington provide this timely and reliable guide to the most effective and non invasive uses of surveillance to make public places safer from crime GIS and Evidence-Based Policy Making Stephen Wise,Max Craglia,2007-12-28 Although much has been written on evidence based policy making this is the first volume to address the potential of GIS in this arena GIS and Evidence Based Policy Making covers the development of new methodological approaches emphasizing the identification of spatial patterns in social phenomena It examines organizational issues including the Evidence-Based Counterterrorism Policy Cynthia Lum,Leslie W. Kennedy,2011-11-06 In the past eight years there has been a massive increase in government spending on counterterrorism intervention development and implementation Given this increase there are two evidence based policy questions that are important to address Is there evidence that any of these programs are effective in other words can they be shown to be linked to reducing terrorism terrorist recruiting or to improving the response and management of terrorist events Do these interventions have secondary or collateral effects that may be costly harmful illegal beneficial or otherwise As Lum and Kennedy discovered in an evaluation research on counterterrorism interventions only a minuscule number of empirical studies of terrorism exist and there is an almost complete absence of evaluation research on counter terrorism strategies This is startling given the enormous increases in the development and use of counter terrorism programs as well as spending on counter terrorism activity Even more disconcerting was the nature of the evaluations we did find some programs were shown to either have no discernible effect on terrorism or lead to increases in terrorism The emphasis of the need for empirical research in evaluating interventions and informing policy cannot be overstated and is the primary goal of Evidence Based Counterterrorism Policy
