

REFLECTIONS ON COMMUNITY STUDIES

Manuel Calvino

*Universidad de La Habana
Havana, Cuba*

In this article, the author reflects on some of the limitations of the field of Community Psychology. The critical reflections offered focus on: (a) the sterile quality of the field's alternatives between offering paternalistic or utopian perspectives on how community processes operate; (b) the field's reliance on scientific objectivity and neutrality; (c) the field's ignorance of those who live in the community and the consequent presentation of "disembodied" communities; (d) the field's ahistorical and decontextualized treatment of community phenomena; and (e) the paradoxical nature of providing help to a community. © 1998 John Wiley & Sons, Inc.

As reflected in its title, my goal in writing this article is to share with my colleagues in community psychology my reflections about the field and the challenges that it confronts. In many respects, our field has taken upon itself a task considered by many as fruitless, if not impossible. That task, however, becomes increasingly important as the needs of those residing in many communities become ever more urgent. I understand that these reflections do not represent either popular or widely held views. Hopefully, those interested in the economic, sociopolitical, and psychological reality of what are defined as communities in Latin America will appreciate the salience of my comments regarding how we apply our expertise in interventions, in theory, and in research methods.

Readers will note that I have not focused my comments on my country, Cuba. I base this decision on several factors. First, I believe community psychology in Cuba has (to paraphrase the old saying) a long past but a short history. In stating this, I am distinguishing clearly between what the field can be, and what it has been, in Cuba. In some respects, the Cuban Revolution represented a community effort, that is, a sociopolitical

Where Music Helps: Community Music Therapy in Action and Reflection Brynjulf

Stige, 2017-07-05 This book explores how people may use music in ways that are helpful for them especially in relation to a sense of wellbeing belonging and participation The central premise for the study is that help is not a decontextualized effect that music produces The book contributes to the current discourse on music culture and society and it is developed in dialogue with related areas of study such as music sociology ethnomusicology community psychology and health promotion Where Music Helps describes the emerging movement that has been labelled Community Music Therapy and it presents ethnographically informed case studies of eight music projects localized in England Israel Norway and South Africa The various chapters of the book portray music's help in action within a broad range of contexts with individuals groups and communities all of whom have been challenged by illness or disability social and cultural disadvantage or injustice Music and musicing has helped these people find their voice literally and metaphorically to be welcomed and to welcome to be accepted and to accept to be together in different and better ways to project alternative messages about themselves or their community and to connect with others beyond their immediate environment The overriding theme that is explored is how music comes to afford things in concert with its environments which may suggest a way of accounting for the role of music in music therapy without reducing music to a secondary role in relation to the therapeutic that is being just a symbol of

Vidich, Joseph Bensman, 1964 School-University-Community Research in a (Post) COVID-19 World R. Martin Reardon, Jack Leonard, 2023-07-01 The American Psychological Association 2020 reported that some 81% of teenage children 13 to 17 years of age were negatively impacted in a range of ways due to school closures in connection with COVID 19 including 47% who indicated that they didn't learn as much as they did in previous years para 21 That perhaps many more than 47% of teenage children in the United States did not learn as much as they did in previous years was documented in the most recent National Assessment of Educational Progress NAEP report which found that the national average score declines in mathematics for fourth and eighth graders were the largest ever recorded in that subject Wilburn Elias 2022 para 1 The National Center for Educational Statistics Commissioner commented somewhat hyperbolically that the results showed that every student was vulnerable to the pandemic's disruptions Wilburn Elias 2022 para 5 and called for a single minded emphasis on ways to assist students to recover from their trauma and accelerate their learning Wilburn and Elias 2022 joined those who have pointed out that the learning declines associated with COVID 19 did not occur equitably The likelihood of a single minded policy response to change the system and address the achievement gaps exposed by the range of responses to COVID 19 seems small On the one hand doubting the sustainability of innovative responses education historian Larry Cuban referenced the dominant stability of schooling which if anything produces this huge public and professional need to resume schooling as it was Young 2022 para 18 On the other hand diverse political agendas will diffuse concerted efforts Grossman et al 2021 discussed a pertinent example from Michigan where public health data partisanship and collective bargaining p 637 each played a role in determining school reopening decisions On this same issue of school reopening there is credible evidence from Massachusetts that the much maligned and politically explosive masking policies implemented in some schools may have saved lives Cowger et al 2022 Roy 2020 asserted that historically pandemics have forced humans to break with the past and imagine their world anew This one is no different It is a portal a gateway between one world and the next para 48 The chapters in this volume attest to the willingness of individuals to collaborate in stepping through that portal Feminist Community Research Gillian Creese, Wendy Frisby, 2011-10-20 Feminist community research is a collaborative policy oriented methodology that holds the promise of empowering the disadvantaged and building a more just society But in the absence of critical analysis and the responsible use of power this approach can lead to naive or even harmful practices Grounded as they are in fieldwork these interdisciplinary case studies acknowledge the real methodological and ethical issues that researchers can encounter as they negotiate contested research relationships The authors discuss the strategies successful and unsuccessful that they have employed to overcome these challenges The authors collective experiences working with diverse groups from immigrant and Aboriginal women in Vancouver to poverty reduction practitioners in Vietnam reveal that truly equitable research projects require that we question core concepts and address crucial issues such as the promises and limits of reflexivity the politics of place time and resources ethical dilemmas and emotional responses and the way issues of social justice policy and social change are embedded in research

Service-Learning and Writing: Paving the Way for Literacy(ies) through Community Engagement Isabel Baca, 2012-11-20 Service learning and Writing Paving the Way for Literacy(ies) through Community Engagement discusses service learning as a teaching and learning method and its integration with writing The various authors from different disciplines and institutions present service learning as a means of having students practice writing in real world settings and they show how relationship building and partnerships between higher education and diverse communities produce benefits for all involved the students faculty administrators and the communities themselves This volume demonstrates how writing instruction and or writing practice can complement community engagement and outreach at local national and international contexts Through different cross cultural contexts and academic disciplines the various authors explore reflection assessment internalization diversity and multiple literacies and their importance when integrating service learning in higher education and community literacy
