Governing Higher Education: National Perspectives on Institutional Governance Alberto Amaral,Glen Jones,B. Karseth,2013-11-11 Over the last decades higher education has gone through an unprecedented growth period and as a result the average university or college has now more students and a larger output than ever before At the same time the socio economic and political demands with respect to higher education have grown dramatically These developments have taken place without a proportional increase of the budgets and facilities of the higher education institutions This has created an imbalance between the expectations with respect to higher education and the institutional capacities in the sector One of the underlying trends is that the traditional pact between higher education and society has become problematic Society no longer accepts the rather special and protected position that universities have had for a very long time in our societies The knowledge based social and cultural missions of higher education institutions are no longer taken for granted as the main legitimacy bases for public investments in higher education Universities and colleges are at present expected to function efficiently to contribute to sustainable economic growth at various levels and to add to national and even supranational trade balances On top of this they have to prove that they maintain a high level of quality in their primary activities i e teaching research and services while adapting and responding to the expectations expressed so vehemently in their environments and to a decreasing per capita funding basis

Mukadam, 2020-05-04 Student Empowerment in Higher Education brings together the accumulated knowledge and experience of many accomplished teachers and students from higher education institutions around the world and has much to offer those who are engaged in higher education as students teachers or support staff The authors offer personal reflections in teaching learning mentoring assessment hands on activities course design and student identities in higher education across the globe supported by academic research and scholarship Readers are provided with a window into tried and tested empowering practices in varying contexts enabling them to see what works and what does not alongside the challenges and possibilities A distinctive feature of this book and its paramount strength is that it explores best practices in student empowerment whilst reflecting on matters of teaching and learning that are familiar to students and teachers alike and also explores practices in a variety of disciplines The intention of these volumes therefore is not only to inform readers about the diverse learning and teaching approaches of the authors but most importantly to facilitate processes of student empowerment and promote reflection on teaching and learning practices In recent decades higher education policy discourse has persistently implied that a university education is delivered to students under the impersonal banner of the student experience Not only does this commodify the diverse individual experiences of students into one marketable product it also creates false barriers and power dynamics between students and their teachers In Student Empowerment in Higher Education the students and lecturers who collaborated to write this important volume have literally blown such misleading notions out of the window I highly recommend each varied and

The European Higher Education Area Adrian Curaj, Liviu Matei, Remus Pricopie, Jamil Salmi, Peter Scott, 2015-10-12 Bridging the gap between higher education research and policy making was always a challenge but the recent calls for more evidence based policies have opened a window of unprecedented opportunity for researchers to bring more contributions to shaping the future of the European Higher Education Area EHEA Encouraged by the success of the 2011 first edition Romania and Armenia have organised a 2nd edition of the Future of Higher Education Bologna Process Researchers Conference FOHE BPRC in November 2014 with the support of the Italian Presidency of the European Union and as part of the official EHEA agenda Reuniting over 170 researchers from more than 30 countries the event was a forum to debate the trends and challenges faced by higher education today and look at the future of European cooperation in higher education The research volumes offer unique insights regarding the state of affairs of European higher education and research as well as forward looking policy proposals More than 50 articles focus on essential themes in higher education Internationalization of higher education Financing and governance Excellence and the diversification of missions Teaching learning and student engagement Equity and the social dimension of higher education Education research and innovation Quality assurance The impacts of the Bologna Process on the EHEA and beyond and Evidence based policies in higher education The Bologna process was launched at a time of great optimism about the future of the European project to which of course the reform of higher education across the continent has made a major contribution Today for the present that optimism has faded as economic troubles have accumulated in the Euro zone political tensions have been increased on issues such as immigration and armed conflict has broken out in Ukraine There is clearly a risk that against this troubled background the Bologna process itself may falter There are already signs that it has been downgraded in some countries with evidence of political withdrawal All the more reason for the voice of higher education researchers to be heard Since the first conference they have established themselves as powerful stakeholders in the development of the EHEA who are helping to maintain the momentum of the Bologna process Their pivotal role has been strengthened by the second Bucharest conference Peter Scott Institute of Education London General

Rapporteur of the FOHE BPRC first edition      Beyond the Pandemic Pedagogy of Managerialism Bhabani Shankar Nayak, Katherine Appleford, 2023-09-01 This book analyses how growing managerialism and the marketisation of higher education has undermined educational standards and pedagogical integrity Specifically it provides a thorough critique of how the pandemic and the move to online learning and MOOCs has reinforced these developments The book outlines the limits of new managerialism which is replacing critical mass with a culture of compliance in higher education Employing an ethnographic approach the book explores the impact of the sudden shift in teaching delivery from in person to online for example the changing role of the PhD supervisor during the pandemic and the impact on students willingness to engage and their in visibility in the classroom and further considers how these impact class interactions social relationships and learning Ultimately this book argues that the COVID 19 pandemic exposed the limits of marketisation of education and revealed the distorted managerial response to a crisis      Higher Education in the United States James J. F. Forest, Kevin Kinser, 2002-06-21 Surveys the changing landscape of American higher education from academic freedom to virtual universities from campus crime to Pell Grants from the Student Privacy Act to student diversity In the years following World War II college and university enrollment doubled students revolted faculty unionized and community colleges evolved Tuition and technology soared as did the number of first generation minority and women students These changes radically transformed the American system of postsecondary education Today that system is in trouble Its aging professoriate prepares for retirement but low academic salaries can no longer attract the best minds to replace them A flood of corporate dollars funds commercial research but money for basic research the seedbed of American scientific preeminence has dried up Colleges and universities also face heated competition with for profit education providers for students faculty and external financial support along with the costs of providing remedial education to growing numbers of students who are unprepared for postsecondary education Higher Education in the United States provides a comprehensive analysis of these issues and others that scholars and practitioners of higher education study discuss and grapple with on a daily basis
