The Cambridge Companion to English Melodrama Carolyn Williams, 2018-10-04 This newly commissioned series of essays by leading scholars is the first volume to offer both an overview of the field and also current emerging critical views on the history form and influence of English melodrama. Authoritative voices provide an introduction to melodrama's early formal features such as tableaux and music and trace the development of the genre in the nineteenth century through the texts and performances of its various sub genres the theatres within which the plays were performed and the audiences who watched them. The historical contexts of melodrama are considered through essays on topics including contemporary politics class gender race and empire. And the extensive influences of melodrama are demonstrated through a wide ranging assessment of its ongoing and sometimes unexpected expressions in psychoanalysis in other art forms the novel film television musical theatre and in popular culture generally from the nineteenth to the twenty first century.

Anthony Asquith Tom Ryall, 2013-07-19 This is the first comprehensive critical study of Anthony Asquith. Ryall sets the director's work in the context of British cinema from the silent period to the 1960s examining the artistic and cultural influences which shaped his films. Asquith's silent films were compared favourably to those of his eminent contemporary Alfred Hitchcock but his career faltered during the 1930s. However the success of Pygmalion 1938 and French Without Tears 1939 based on plays by George Bernard Shaw and Terence Rattigan together with his significant contributions to wartime British cinema re established him as a leading British film maker. Asquith's post war career includes several pictures in collaboration with Terence Rattigan and the definitive adaptation of Oscar Wilde's The Importance of Being Earnest 1951 but his versatility is demonstrated in a number of modest genre films including The Woman in Question 1950 The Young Lovers 1954 and Orders to Kill 1958.

Destination London Tim Bergfelder, Christian Cargnelli, 2008 The legacy of emigrants in the British film industry from the silent film era until after the Second World War has been largely neglected in the scholarly literature. Destination London is the first book to redress this imbalance. Focusing on areas such as exile genre technological transfer professional training and education cross cultural exchange and representation it begins by mapping the reasons for this neglect before examining the contributions made to British cinema by emigrant directors actors screenwriters cinematographers set designers and composers. It goes on to assess the cultural and economic contexts of transnational industry collaborations in the 1920s artistic cosmopolitanism in the 1930s and anti Nazi propaganda in the 1940s.

London as Screen Gateway Elizabeth Evans, Malini Guha, 2023-07-26 London as Screen Gateway explores how London features within screen narratives and as a location of screen industry activity. Reflecting the diversity of roles the city plays both on screen and within the screen industries the volume explores the intersection between London as a material place and its position within a cultural imaginary Conceptualising London as an archival city as a collection of specific places and spaces and as a part of national and international cultural and economic flows contributors from film studies television studies and media studies approach London through the lenses of textual analysis historical work industry studies and user experience Chapters explore how London has appeared on screen across film and television how screen content frames notions of place and belonging within the diasporic communities across the city how the city has become a hub for the UK and global screen industries and how it intersects with national and local media policy This interdisciplinary volume will be of interest to scholars and students of film studies television studies media industry studies games studies cultural and media studies

British rural landscapes on film Paul Newland,2016-09-01 British rural landscapes on film offers insights into how rural areas in Britain have been represented on film from the silent era through both world wars and on into the twenty first century It is the first book to exclusively deal with representations of the British countryside on film The contributors demonstrate that the countryside has provided Britain and its constituent nations and regions with a dense range of spaces in which cultural identities have been and continue to be worked through British rural landscapes on film demonstrates that British cinema provides numerous examples of how national identity and the identity of the countryside have been partly constructed through filmic representation and how British rural films can allow us to further understand the relationship between the cultural identities of specific areas of Britain and the landscapes they inhabit

When Music Takes Over in Film Anna K. Windisch,Claus Tieber,Phil Powrie,2023-05-02 This open access collection deals with musical moments in film as one of the most pivotal and compelling issues of current film music research Musical moments as defined by Amy Herzog occur when a musical number inverts the normal relationship between the image track and the soundtrack in a film in such a way that what we see is determined by what we hear As one potential approach this definition provokes a variety of perspectives to investigate the disruptive potential of these moments and numbers as a creative device in the production of audiovisual narratives In this sense the book responds to a need for an anthology that introduces students as well as scholars of cinema musicology media studies and cultural studies more broadly to recent discourses in film music scholarship The volume includes contributions by early career researchers as well as by established experts in the fields of musicology film studies media studies and cultural studies promoting cross disciplinary collaboration in film music research

Americanizing Britain Genevieve Abravanel,2012-04-06 How did Great Britain which entered the twentieth century as a dominant empire reinvent itself in reaction to its fears and fantasies about the United States Investigating the anxieties caused by the invasion of American culture from jazz to Ford motorcars to Hollywood films during the first half of the twentieth century Genevieve Abravanel theorizes the rise of the American Entertainment Empire as a new style of imperialism that threatened Britain's own In the early twentieth century the United States excited a range of utopian and dystopian energies in Britain Authors who might ordinarily seem to have little in common H G Wells Aldous Huxley and Virginia Woolf began to imagine Britain's future through America Abravanel explores how these novelists fashioned transatlantic fictions as a response to the encroaching presence of Uncle Sam She then turns her attention to the arrival of jazz after World War I showing how a range of writers from Elizabeth Bowen to W H Auden deployed the new music as a metaphor for the modernization of England The global phenomenon of Hollywood film proved even more menacing than the jazz craze prompting nostalgia for English folk culture and a lament for Britain's literary heritage Abravanel then refracts British debates about America through the writing of two key cultural critics F R Leavis and T S Eliot In so doing she demonstrates the interdependencies of some of the most cherished categories of literary study language nation and artistic value by situating the high low debates within a transatlantic framework

Heroes and happy endings Christine Grandy, 2016-05-16 This is a highly anticipated examination of the popular film and fiction consumed by Britons in the 1920s and 1930s Departing from a prevailing emphasis on popular culture as escapist Christine Grandy offers a fresh perspective by noting the enduring importance of class and gender divisions in the narratives read and watched by the working and middle classes between the wars This compelling study ties contemporary concerns about ex soldiers profiteers and working and voting women to the heroes villains and love interests that dominated a range of films and novels Heroes and happy endings further considers the state's role in shaping the content of popular narratives through censorship An important and highly readable work for scholars and students interested in cultural and social history as well as media and film studies this book is sure to shift our understanding of the role of mass culture in the 1920s and 1930s

H. G. Wells, Modernity and the Movies Keith Williams, 2007-12-01 This book investigates Wells's interest in cinema and related media technologies by placing it back into the contemporary cultural and scientific contexts giving rise to them It plugs a gap in understanding Wells's contribution to exploring and advancing the possibilities of cinematic narrative and its social and ideological impacts in the modern period Previous studies concentrate on adaptations this book accounts for the specifically proto cinematic techniques and concerns of Wells's texts It also focuses on contemporary film making in dialogue with his ideas Alongside Hollywood's later transactions it gives equal weight to neglected British and continental European dimensions Chapter 1 shows how early writings The Time Machine and short stories feature many kinds of radically defamiliarised vision These constitute imaginative speculations about the forms and potentials of moving image and electronic media Chapter 2 discusses the power of voyeurism absent presence and the disjunction of sound image reproduction implied in The Invisible

Man and its topical politics updated in notable screen versions Chapter 3 extends this to dystopian warnings of systematic surveillance broadcasting of celebrity personae and post literate video culture in When the Sleeper Wakes a crucial template for urban futures on film Chapter 4 analyses Wells's belated return to screenwriting in the 1930s It accounts for his broadbrow ambition of mediating between popular and avant garde tendencies to promote his cause and its mixed results in Things to Come The Man Who Could Work Miracles etc Chapter 5 finally surveys Wells's legacy on both small and large screens It considers whether as well as being raided for scenarios for spectacular effects his subtexts still nourish an evolving tradition of alternative SF which duly critiques the innovations and applications of its host media

Chromatic Modernity Sarah Street, Joshua Yumibe, 2019-04-02 The era of silent film long seen as black and white has been revealed in recent scholarship as bursting with color Yet the 1920s remain thought of as a transitional decade between early cinema and the rise of Technicolor despite the fact that new color technologies used in film advertising fashion and industry reshaped cinema and consumer culture In Chromatic Modernity Sarah Street and Joshua Yumibe provide a revelatory history of how the use of color in film during the 1920s played a key role in creating a chromatically vibrant culture Focusing on the final decade of silent film Street and Yumibe portray the 1920s as a pivotal and profoundly chromatic period of cosmopolitan exchange collaboration and experimentation in and around cinema Chromatic Modernity explores contemporary debates over color's artistic scientific philosophical and educational significance It examines a wide range of European and American films including Opus 1 1921 L'Inhumaine 1923 Die Nibelungen 1924 The Phantom of the Opera 1925 The Lodger 1927 Napoléon 1927 and Dracula 1932 A comprehensive comparative study that situates film among developments in art color science and industry Chromatic Modernity reveals the role of color cinema in forging new ways of
