Taking Back the Streets Temma Kaplan, 2004-02-16 Toward the end of the twentieth century in places ranging from Latin America and the Caribbean to Europe the United States South Africa Nigeria Iran Japan China and South Asia women and young people took to the streets to fight injustices they believed they could not confront in any other way In the hope of changing the way politics is done they called officials to account for atrocities they had committed and unjust laws they had upheld They attempted to drive authoritarian governments from power by publicizing the activities these officials tried to hide This powerful book takes us into the midst of these movements to give us a close up look at how a new generation bore witness to human rights violations resisted the efforts of regimes to shame and silence young idealists and created a vibrant public life that remains a vital part of ongoing struggles for democracy and justice today Through personal interviews newspaper accounts family letters and research in the archives of human rights groups this book portrays women and young people from Argentina Chile and Spain as emblematic of others around the world in their public appeals for direct democracy An activist herself author Temma Kaplan gives readers a deep and immediate sense of the sacrifices and accomplishments the suffering and the power of these uncommon common people By showing that mobilizations sometimes accompanied by shaming rituals were more than episodic more than ways for societies to protect themselves against government abuses and even state terrorism her book envisions a creative political sphere a fifth estate in which ordinary citizens can reorient the political practices of democracy in our time

Transitional Justice and the Kurdish Conflict Nisan Alıcı, 2025-08-15 Centralising the experience of victims survivors and other grassroots actors this book examines how transitional justice can be used in transforming the Kurdish conflict in Turkey Despite 40 years of armed conflict its violent effects on Kurdish people and the wider society and strong demands for justice there is little work on transitional justice in the context of the Kurdish conflict In response this book explores the limits and potentials of transitional justice in Turkey s ongoing conflict by focusing on the perspectives of victims survivors and grassroots justice activists Such perspectives have received little attention in the transitional justice literature even as it has exhibited an increasing interest in contexts where no formal transition has taken place But as this book demonstrates the Kurdish conflict reveals the importance not only of documenting these perspectives but in seeing how those most affected by conflict are able to transform their experience into political action Drawing on Kurdish victim survivors own understandings of their experiences and activists perceptions of the potential of transitional justice the book thereby addresses and advocates the transformative potential of bottom up grassroots level efforts to deliver transitional justice goals This book will appeal to transitional justice scholars and practitioners those with interests in the role of social movements as well as others with interests in the Kurdish conflict or in Middle Eastern politics more generally

Disappearing Acts Diana Taylor, 1997 Taylor uses performance theory to explore how public spectacle both builds and dismantles a sense of national and gender identity

Here nation is understood as a product of communal imaginings that are rehearsed written and staged and spectacle is the desiring machine at work in those imaginings Taylor argue that the founding scenario of Argentineness stages the struggle for national identity as a battle between men fought on over and through the feminine body of the Motherland She shows how the military s representations of itself as the model of national authenticity established the parameters of the conflict in the 70s and 80s feminized the enemy and positioned the public limiting its ability to respond
